The Situation Post 21/12/12

Many people have asked me for an update of our situation following the passing of the 21st of December 2012 “deadline”.

This essay is not intended to be a full update as not all of the information is yet available to carry out a full assessment of where we are and what exactly happened on the day.

However, two things are already very clear:

1. The reason for so few people undergoing soul re-integration is as a result of human lack of belief in themselves. I am not going to explore this aspect in full as this will be the subject of a future essay.

2. Given that there were so few completions on that date, those who would re-shape the world into their view of a “New World Order” have stepped up their plans of moving people in directions that the NWO wish to go whilst totally ignoring the choices of the people.

It is this second situation that I would mainly like to explore in this essay and in doing so will highlight many of the reasons for the seeming “failure” of so many to re-integrate.

New World Order?

This is a term that has been used by most leading politicians, as well as many others, in recent years. However, not everybody is familiar with the term and certainly not with its implications.

Think of Aldous Huxley’s novel “1984” and that will give you some idea of what the term “New World Order” means.

Essentially, the plan is to create a one world government, a one world bank and a one world police force. A central government that rules the world and enforces its policies with a police force under its direct control.

Is this a bad thing?

Well think about the governments we currently have. Are they honest? Do they carry out “the will of the people”? Do they treat all of their citizens equally?

Most people would answer no to all of those questions. Imagine all of the political corruption there would be if there was only one world government – if you were a part of, or favoured by, that government, you would be allowed to get away with virtually anything. If you were not favoured by the government, you would be made to suffer or even be imprisoned.

There are far too many examples of these kinds of behaviour in the world today by individual governments. The only thing that holds back their, sometimes, extreme behaviour is the reactions of other individual governments. Without those individual governments expressing their views, the one world government could do as it pleases without hindrance.

But would this one world government actually be there to carry out the wishes of the electorate or would it be under the control of what has become known as “the industrial/military complex”?

At the time of writing, a bill is passing through the American government that has been written by the GMO company Monsanto.

Known as the Monsanto Protection Act, it gives the company total immunity from all health and environmental controls that are currently in place in America.

Monsanto are looking to be able to plant any genetically modified organism (GMO) anywhere it chooses on American soil with total immunity from any current or future environmental law.

At the time of writing, “Monsanto’s Law” has been passed by the American Congress and is headed towards the American Senate where it is anticipated it will pass without change.

Then we have the situation in Guantanamo Bay prison.

Both President GW Bush and President Obama have granted pardons to more than half of the prisoners held at Guantanamo as they have been proven to have no connections to any terrorist organisations. The Presidential Orders further state that the prisoners who have been granted pardons be repatriated to their home countries. The military controllers of Guantanamo have ignored both Presidents, locked down the prison and refused access to the prisoner’s legal representatives and stopped commercial flights into the area.

The prisoners have responded by going on hunger strike and this hunger strike has had a news blackout as it has not been reported in the western media.

We have all seen the recent banking situation in Cyprus.

Due to EU and government policies, the banking system in Cyprus is in a state of dire collapse.

The European Central Bank and the International Monetary Fund have stepped in with a rescue package of measures.

The first thing they did was to reduce the level of state benefits to pensioners, the disabled etc by twenty percent and halt the spending on government projects.

They then close the banks, preventing people from accessing their own money.

They insist on a one-off tax of ten percent of all the money individuals hold in their bank deposit accounts. When this causes riots, they modify this tax to taking ten percent, but could be up to eighty per cent, of the accounts that hold more than one hundred thousand Euros.

The Bank of Cyprus collapses because of the activities of the European Central Bank, International Monetary Fund and the Cyprus government and who pays the price for it? Ordinary people who have tried to generate some savings against a rainy day.

Most people now see this as the model for future bank bailouts.

We have already had situations where governments gave the banks many millions of tax payer’s money but next time the banks deliberately mess up the economy, they will plunder our savings accounts.

At the time of writing, I have heard strong rumours that the Canadian government is looking to pass a law that gives them the powers to act in the same way as the Cyprus government is acting when future problems arise in the banks in Canada.

Imagine how safe your savings would be if there was only a one world bank?

Would the people of the world have a fair voice under a one world government? It would seem to be extremely unlikely.

So what mechanisms are being used to bring about a one world government – the NWO?

Agenda 21

Here’s a recent news item:
“On February 27th [2013], the European Commission published a document announcing it will take on itself a “lead role” in global environmental governance through “a unified policy framework” – in effect aligning itself with Agenda 21. In the thirty page document titled “A Decent Life For All” the EC says it aspires to a “leading role” in an “overarching framework” towards global governance. ...”

Agenda 21 is part of a much larger document that was agreed and signed into law in something over one hundred countries.

Agenda 21 arose from the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development (UNCED) Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro in 1992.

The agreements forged at the summit include the Biodiversity Treaty and Agenda 21.

The Biodiversity Treaty seeks to prevent the further loss of species from the planet and to half the current rate of plant and animal extinctions.

Agenda 21 deals with people and environmental matters on a much larger scale than the Biodiversity Treaty.

It is called “Agenda 21” because its requirements are to fully implemented before the year 2100.

The two main requirements of Agenda 21 are:

1. Fifty per cent of all land be designated as wildlife refuges allowing the indigenous plants and animals to recover and regain their original habitats.
2. The wealth of western countries be more equally distributed amongst third world countries.

An environmentalist’s dream situation.

Except.

How do you return fifty percent of the land back to nature when most of it is inhabited by people?

Simple, you remove the people.

How can a country produce enough food to feed its population if fifty percent of the land is taken out of food production?

Simple, the people starve.

To quote a statement attributed to the environmentalist and deep sea explorer, Jacques Cousteau, who was at the UNCED conference:

“In order to stabilise world population, we must eliminate 350,000 people per day.”

Written into Agenda 21 is the requirement that “the world’s population be reduced to a manageable 500 million”.

When you bear in mind that the official global population at the end of 2012 was 7,000,000,000 (seven billion), Jacques Cousteau’s figures look a little light.

In addition the main proposal for achieving the target of returning fifty percent of the land to wildlife is to remove people off the land and force them to move into cities.

This process has already begun in some countries.

This is achieved by removing government financial support to rural towns and villages and closing off local access to motorways and freeways.

The local economy collapses and people are forced to move away from their homes and into larger towns and cities for work.

Once the small town or village is empty, it is demolished to prevent anyone from returning and living there. This is already happening in some countries.

Given these actions and the stated aim of reducing the global population to “a manageable 500 million”, it is not so much Huxley’s 1984 but the nineteen fifty’s Charlton Heston movie “Soylent Green”.

The plans of The New World Order and Agenda 21 have been in place for more than twenty years and yet, until recently, very few people were aware of these plans or of their implications.

There are two reasons for this:

1. The media is complicit in a cover-up.
2. Most people don’t want to think about it. After all, if they thought about it, they would have to do something.

We will return to the media later.

But let us take a look at the second reason.

Lack of Completions

At the end of 2012, many people were baffled as to why they had not undergone soul re-integration: after all, they said they were ready and they wanted to do it so why didn’t they?

The answer is to do with how we see our world and our place within it – the “mindset” we adopt to undergo our everyday lives.

We, in the west, have become brain washed into believing that our lifestyles are the best there are and that this western lifestyle should be adopted by the non-western world.

But if we go to the Akashic and look at the percentages of people who were actually ready to undergo soul re-integration, as opposed to those who said they were ready, we find a very different picture.

In the west, an average of sixty percent of the population claimed to have been ready whereas on the day, that figure, in some western countries, was actually about one percent.

In most non-western countries, the percentage of those who were actually ready to undergo soul re-integration was as high as ninety eight percent.

(Only about five hundred thousand people actually completed re-integration on the day and these were all from non-western countries. The reason for so small a number in the non-western countries is because those people adhered to the collective decision to undergo re-integration en masse. That is, we all re-integrated together – both western and non-western people at the same time.)

The problem with western countries is that we do not see the larger picture. We have become bogged down in our technological lifestyles to the point where we cannot even sense the energy patterns that those of the non-western countries see as a part of their everyday lives.

We have become brainwashed into ways of thinking and acting that remove us away from the natural patterns of life and so we have a problem in properly understanding ourselves let alone the cycles of the Earth.

What we need to do, to achieve our part of the re-integration agreement, is to alter the way in which we think.

As Einstein put it:

“The significant problems we have cannot be solved at the same level of thinking with which we created them.”

In other words; in order to achieve our goal of soul re-integration, we must begin to think on a different level.

If we had achieved mass soul re-integration, the plans and schemes of the New World Order and their Agenda 21 would have been stopped in its tracks as we would have risen above their mind control and political engineering.

So how do we start to think on a different level?

The first step is to realise that we have been brainwashed. Once we begin to realise that, we can then begin to investigate the reasons why we think in the way in which we do and begin to undo much of the brainwashing and move onto a new level of thought.

Science

One of the main regions of our lives where we have been deliberately misled is with science.

In many respects, the world, and its place within this Universe, is too large a topic for us to consider especially when we have the day to day running of our lives to take care of. Quantum physics is not the usual topic of conversation in the pub.

So we rely on those who have set themselves up as experts and we listen to what they have to say.

The thing to bear in mind about scientists is that they have their own biases and agendas. For example: In the Victorian era (when most of our current scientific thinking was set in stone) most scientists believed absolutely that if a woman attempted to solve problems in higher mathematics, her brain would explode – I kid you not.

The problem with science is that it operates on two main levels: there is the public face of science and then there is the reality of the control that science is under and rigorously imposes upon itself.

“It is intriguing to note that the views of scientists like Tardieu, Stern and Susman, though appearing in scientific journals, are rarely encountered in popular presentations or general textbooks. This points to the existence of a pattern of knowledge filtration in the scientific community that tends, consciously or unconsciously, to suppress information that would complicate the relatively simple picture of human evolution presented to the public in general and to students at all levels of the educational system...”<sup>1</sup>

I have spent about 35 years actively researching within the Akashic trying to find the truth about human history but I have spent more years than that investigating science, in all of its fields.

The main conclusion I have reached from all of the scientific literature I have read is that science is following an agenda.

The public face of science is that which somebody wants us to see and that there are fundamental flaws in even the everyday science we are taught at schools. These flaws and untruths become perpetuated, even by scientists, and so it can be difficult to arrive at an actual truth.

The other problem with science is that there is very little proof of anything – all there are is theories. The amount of scientific theory that can be proven could be written on the back of an envelope.

Despite this lack of proof, the scientific community proclaims its supposed knowledge with great confidence and arrogance and, unless we research these claims for ourselves, we have no method by which we can counter these scientific claims; we tend to accept them and move on.

When I have given talks about the information within the Akashic, there is usually one moron in the audience who asks in a very supercilious fashion: "Is there any scientific proof for what you are saying?" The answer is: Is there any proof of science?

To give an example of what I mean. Let us look at one of the most fundamental theories that scientists claim is absolute – gravity.

Gravity

We all know the story of gravity: Sir Isaac Newton was sitting in his garden one day in the 17th Century when an apple fell on his head. "Ouch, 'tis gravity", said Newton.

Well that's not exactly an accurate picture of how Newton theorised about gravity but it is how most school children like to think about it.

What Newton actually theorised was that the gravitational pull of any two objects is: "Proportional to the mass of each and varies inversely as the square of the distance between them."

In other words, all objects, including people, generate a gravitational pull on each other that reduces the further apart those objects or people are.

The Earth exerts a gravitational pull on the apple and, in return, the apple exerts a gravitational pull on the Earth. But, as the Earth has a far larger mass than the apple, the apple falls towards the Earth. In return, the apple also pulls the Earth towards it but only by an infinitesimal amount.

This theory of how gravity works, and what it is, has predominated science for four hundred years.

Many scientists are now moving away from this concept of gravity and are beginning to realise that the Universe is not held together by gravity but by electro-magnetic forces.

Many cosmologists now actually see these electro-magnetic forces as the 5th dimension – time being the 4th dimension.

(Note: this is not the 5th dimension that Velon controlled channelled messages have been trying to fool us into believing. The Velon version of the 5th dimension doesn't exist anywhere or anywhen.)

To understand why electro-magnetic forces are stronger than gravity, here's an experiment you can try at home.

For this experiment you will need a child's magnet (it doesn't matter if it is a bar magnet or a horseshoe magnet), a household nail and a flat surface.

Place the nail on the flat surface and take the magnet into your hand. From a point directly above the nail, bring the hand holding the magnet slowly down towards the nail. When you are within 2 to 3 centimetres of the nail, it will suddenly leap from the surface and onto the magnet.

What this shows is that the magnetic force is powerful enough to lift the mass of the nail off the surface a few centimetres without touching it. It also shows that your child's magnet is powerful enough to overcome the Earth's gravitational pull on the nail.

It is also worth noting that if you lift the nail off the surface with your hand, you can lift it easily. In comparison, it is far more difficult to lift the nail from the magnet.

Another example of why gravity does not exist is to do with the moon.

Through popular science, we know that the moon is held in its orbit by the Earth's gravitational pull. In turn, the moon exerts a gravitational pull on the Earth resulting in variations in tidal patterns in the sea (most women are also affected by the moon's cycles).

When NASA (North American Space Agency) was blasting astronauts into orbit above the Earth's atmosphere, the astronauts entered a field of zero gravity.

When the international space station was in orbit, the scientists claimed that they wanted to carry out experiments that could not be carried out on the Earth's surface as they needed to be carried out in zero gravity.

If the moon was held in place by the Earth's gravitational field, the astronauts would not be in zero gravity until they were in an orbit beyond the moon.

In other words, the moon is not held in place by gravity.

So what does hold the moon in its orbit around the Earth? How does the moon affect the tides? Or for that matter, what holds the Earth and the other planets of the solar system in orbit around the sun? Or the solar system in orbit around the galaxy? Or the galaxy in its place in the Universe?

Electro-magnetic energies.

Or at least, that is the scientific name for the forces involved. Another name for electro-magnetic forces would be consciousness.

In recent years, many, many cosmologists have begun to think of the Universe as conscious.

This new explanation has arisen from experiments in quantum physics where the way in which the experimenter thinks the experiment is going to turn out determines the actual result.

For the Universe to exist there must have been some kind of conscious thought that brought it into being.

Not all cosmologists are happy with this concept as it brings it too close to religious beliefs in God. But many are and their numbers are growing.

So why does the adherence to Newton's 400 year old theory of gravity persist?

Currently, the mainstream scientific view is that somewhere between 13 and 14 billion years ago there was a "Big Bang". This Big Bang came out of nowhere, it was a spontaneous act derived from a single point in space (a "singularity").

As this Big Bang expanded, it somehow generated all of the energy and all of the matter (solid material) that makes up our Universe.

As the Big Bang continued to expand, the density of the matter began to form gravity and it is the gravitational pull of this matter that limits the size of our Universe – too much gravity and the Universe would have collapsed before it began; too little gravity and it would have continued to expand outwards indefinitely without forming the Universe – it had to be the exact amount of gravity at exactly the right time and exactly in the right place for the Universe to form.

But then scientist began to use telescopes and began to map the galaxies that are contained within our Universe. They realised that there were an insufficient number of galaxies, and other massive objects, in the Universe to satisfy the requirements of their gravitational model.

So they sat down and came up with the idea of Cold Dark Matter (CDM). CDM cannot be seen nor can it be measured nor can it be weighed, it only theoretically exists in theoretical quantities. But even with their theorising, and the calculations they carried out to arrive at a collective mass for CDM, they could not find enough of it.

Then they came up with the idea of Cold Dark Energy (CDE). Again, CDE cannot be seen nor can it be measured nor can it be weighed, it only theoretically exists in theoretical quantities.

In order for this "Double Dark" theory to work, there must be a fundamental particle that converts CDE into CDM. This particle was theorised by a Scottish scientist called Peter Higgs and has become known as the "Higgs boson" (there are also WIMPS – Weakly Interacting Mass Particles; and MACHOS – Massive Compact Halo Objects).

What the Higgs boson is supposed to do is travel around the Universe and, when it happens to collide with some theoretical CDE it magically converts it to theoretical CDM generating an extra lump of theoretical mass. Trillions of dollars and have been spent on building larger and larger particle colliders, and millions per year in running costs, in an attempt to track down this theoretical particle that makes Big Bang and gravity theory work. In 2012, there was a big fuss made that the Hadron Collider at Cern, on the Swiss French border, had finally tracked down a Higgs boson. Everyone cheered until the scientists at Cern realised that they didn't have a Higgs boson at all: it was just yet another sub-atomic particle.

Many, many scientists believe that the Big Bang did not happen, that gravity does not exist and that the Higgs boson does not exist: Summing up all of these theoretical particles and interactions as DUNNOS – Dark Unknown Non-detectable Objects Somewhere.

A group of these scientists held a conference in New York in 2004 and made a press release (this press release was not widely published as the statement went against the prevailing view):

"Big Bang Theory relies on a growing number of...things we have never observed. Inflation, dark matter and dark energy are the most prominent. Without them there would be fatal contradictions between the observations...and the predictions... In no other field of physics would this continual recourse to new hypothetical objects be accepted...what's more, the Big Bang Theory can boast of no qualitative predictions that have subsequently been validated by observation..."

So why does the Big Bang theory and the theory of gravity persist?
Here's a clue:

One of the chief proponents of Big Bang and Double Dark theory is Dr Joel Primack. In 2008, he and a colleague, Dr Nancy Adams, undertook a world tour giving lectures at institutes in a number of countries. In these lectures, Drs Primack and Adams proposed an interesting suggestion.<sup>2</sup>

Their lectures begin with a very inaccurate story of the beliefs of ancient Egyptians. Essentially they claimed that the ancient Egyptians had religious beliefs based on their understanding of cosmology – the stars they could see in the heavens. The Egyptian belief structure maintained that as long as the people continued to believe in the gods of the cosmos and how they held up the heavens, the skies and stars would stay in their place. If the people stopped believing in their gods of the cosmos, the sky would fall and crush everyone to death.

Virtually none of that is true but Primack and Adams used it as a prelude to their proposals that modern man should bring about a new religion, using the ancient Egyptian as a model, where the central tenets of this cosmology and anthropology-based religion should be based on the Big Bang theory and Double Dark theory; presumably with cosmologists like Primack and Adams as its "high priests".

During the presentation of the three lectures that I have seen, they blatantly use symbolism connected to Freemasonry.

They further go on to propose that this new cosmologically-based religion form a fundamental part of "the New World Order".

Horror is the best word I can think of to describe my reaction to Primack and Adams' lectures.

***

But gravity is not the only scientific theory that requires that we totally change the way we think about, not only science, but ourselves.

Human Origins

Huge amounts of material have been written about our origins. If you visit any natural history museum anywhere in the world, you will encounter the same story usually in 3D with voice-overs or set displays using hairy models.

The popular scientific version is this:

Sometime about 3.5million years ago, an ape descended from the African trees and began to walk upright.

As these apes began to spend more and more time on the ground, they became less and less ape-like and more and more human-like.

The first set of fossils to be found was of an early human (non-ape) who has become known as "Lucy" and that similar fossils to Lucy's indicate "The First Family".

When these fossils came to light in the early 1970's, there was a great deal of celebration that the first humans had been found in Africa.

In the 1980's scientists proved that Lucy and The First Family were not of a human lineage and it all went quiet in the field of serious science but it remains as the accepted story in popular science.

Here is the story of Lucy and The First Family.<sup>3</sup>

Both Lucy and The First Family have been given the scientific name of: Australopithecus Afarensis (this name means: Australo – southern. Pithecus – ape. Afarensis – the region of Ethiopia where the fossils were found.

The first finds were in 1973 in the Ethiopian region of Afar, near to the city of Hadar. These finds were of a partial thigh bone (femur) and a partial shin bone (tibia). Both were lying near to each other on the surface. It was assumed that both bones belonged to the same individual but nobody knows for certain as the bones are fossilised therefore DNA cannot be extracted. The finder was Dr Donald Johanson.

The two bones became known as the Hadar Knee and designated as AL 129.

The knee joint is what is known as a valgus knee – this is where the top of the femur, where it joins the hip, is outside of the line of the knee. In African apes, the femur rises straight from the knee to the hip.

Johanson claimed that this angle of joint (15 degrees) proves that it must have been human or, at least, a transitionary phase between apes and humans. However, no adult human has a joint angle this great; the average human joint angle is 9 degrees. The extreme angle of the joint could be explained if the bones of the joint came from different individuals.

Dr Johanson either did not know, or chose to ignore, the fact that both orang-utans and spider monkeys have valgus knees.

Analysis of the joint by many leading anthropologists and paleoanthropologists (Tardieu, Stern and Suzman plus many others) in the late 1970's and early 1980's all conclude that this knee joint was more closely associated with an early form of orang-utan rather than an early human.

In 1974, Johanson returned to Hadar and found a number of bones from what was assumed to be the same skeleton in a gully. This skeleton became known as "Lucy".

A combination of potassium-argon, fission track and paleomagnetic dating techniques were used on them and Johanson determined that Lucy was 3.5 million years old.

In 1975, Dr Johanson went back to Hadar and found the fossil remains of 13 hominids, men women and children, of the same age as the bones of Lucy. The collection of skeletal remains Johanson called "The First Family".

Very detailed analysis of these skeletons by a number of leading anthropologists during the late 70's and early 80's (but also ongoing) all conclude that both Lucy and The First Family were not the remains of early humans but were of a type of early orang-utan that climbed trees and walked along the branches. The reconstruction of one of the skulls found as part of The First Family gave very gorilla-like characteristics that were very similar to Australopithecus africanus.

The conclusion of the scientists involved was that neither Lucy nor The First Family were part of the human (Homo) lineage but were Australopithecines – a group of monkey-like creatures.

Only Johanson claims that Lucy and The First Family are Hominids (early humans) but he is supported by the scientific mainstream as it goes along with the view they want to present.

However, not all scientists agree with this view. In science, it is all in the name. All branches of science have a committee that determines the categories by which a new "find" is listed. If Lucy and The First Family were considered to be the first of the human lineage, then the name they would have been allocated would have been "Ethiopian Man" or "Hadar Man" in the same way as Neanderthal Man (found in the Neanderthal Valley in Germany) or Peking Man (found near to Peking in China). Then they would have been granted a scientific name beginning with the Latin translation of the word man – Homo – as in Homo Erectus (Upright Man) or Homo Habilis (Handy Man).

Johanson did apply for Lucy and The First Family to be given a "Homo" classification but his application was denied and the classification of Australopithecus Afarensis stands.

In other words, Lucy and The First Family are considered to be not the first humans but Australopithecines – early forms of apes whose closest descendents are orang-utan.

And yet the myth persists, in the popular science as presented to the public, that Lucy and The First Family were our ancestors and they originated in Africa.

Given that the scientific world does not believe that these fossils are of our ancestors, why did the BBC TV show a documentary in 2012 claiming that Dr Johanson's views were correct?

The answer is that there is a need to prove that humans originate in Africa.

Human Development & Migration

Why is there a need to prove that humans first developed in Africa? We will come onto that later.

In the meantime, let us look at another popular myth about human development.

The accepted popular scientific view is that human life developed in Africa sometime around three and a half million years ago. The region of Africa where humans began is rarely specified, just speculated upon.

About two and a half million years ago, some of these early humans (probably Homo Erectus although the actual existence of Homo Erectus as a distinct evolutionary step is greatly doubted by paleoanthropologists) migrated from Africa and spread out across the globe, particularly into Europe and Asia where they became Neanderthal Man and Peking Man.

Sometime around one hundred thousand years ago, there was a second wave of migrations out of Africa, this time the migrants being Cro-Magnon Man (also known as Homo Sapien) who also spread out across Europe and Asia where peoples from both migrations apparently lived in harmony – or not as the case may be as it is dependent on speculation rather than any facts.

Then about thirteen thousand years ago – at the peak of the last ice age – there was a further migration north and east where Cro-Magnon Man traversed the ice bridge between Russia and Alaska gradually making their way all the way down to South America somewhere about eleven thousand years ago.

Except; the proof is against this theory as is the common sense.

Regardless of any evidence, think about that situation for a minute.

You are living in your nice warm cave where you know your local surroundings – all of the water holes and rivers and all of the game trails are well known to you. You know where and when to pick plants, nuts and berries.

Why would you take it into your head to leave your home and travel many thousands of miles into totally unknown territory especially as you would have to fight blizzards and climb glaciers several miles high? Not only that, you would have to endure temperatures many degrees below freezing, no food sources, no water sources, no heat sources, not even trees for firewood and no shelter.

Even if you did have some idea of where you were headed, it would still be an unbelievably risky and foolhardy trip to take especially as the end destination was totally unknown to you.

Even animals, who are meant to have a lower level of intelligence to humans, do not undertake journeys of that nature – they know better.

So what evidence is there to show that the accepted version is incorrect?

A great deal and virtually all of it is deliberately hidden away so that it does not become public knowledge.

Here is one example from the many I could have included.

Lake Huron

(one of the American/Canadian Great Lakes)

Between 1951 and 1955 an anthropologist at the National Museum of Canada, Thomas E Lee, excavated a site known as Sheguiandah on Manitoulin Island in northern Lake Huron where he found a number of flint and stone tools that had obviously been worked by man<sup>4</sup>.

The area of The Great Lakes is thought to have undergone a series of glaciations between 10,000 and 70,000 years ago. The stone artefacts that Lee found were in several of the stratified layers, from just below the surface (the most recent deposits); within the glacial till (middle date deposits) as well as under the first layer of glacial till (the oldest deposits).

In his excavations, Lee used the “best practice” techniques recommended by anthropology at the time. Not only did he excavate extremely carefully, recording in minute detail every find in every layer, he called on a number of experts in different fields, particularly geology, to confirm his findings and their dates.

The oldest artefacts were dated at being around 150,000 years old. This date being agreed by all of the expert scientists involved. However, it was known that dating artefacts in this range would cause considerable difficulties as the scientific consensus view was that no artefact in North America could be older than 12,000 years. To try and mollify the scientific world, Lee’s team put a date of “at least” 30,000 years old in their final report.

The response from the “powers that be” in science was immediate. The head of the University of Canada was instructed to sack Lee. When the head refused, he was himself sacked. Lee’s original papers were not published at the time as no scientific journal would publish them. The artefacts found on the site were confiscated and then disappeared.

Lee refused to leave the university and was only allowed to do menial jobs for the next eight years whilst he struggled against the scientific world to get his findings published. He eventually resigned and set up his own scientific journal where he published his findings (Anthropological Journal of Canada). His publication was ostracised by the scientific community and everything written by Lee was ignored or pilloried.

The Sheguiandah site was shut down and nobody else was allowed to visit it.

Whilst a very few references to the site appear in scientific literature, those that do claim it can be no more than 12,000 years old. All of the painstaking work by Lee’s team is ignored in order to satisfy the belief that N America was not colonised before the end of the last Ice Age: 12,000 years ago.

But the treatment of Lee is far from unique. Many, many scientists, archaeologists, anthropologists and paleoanthropologists have found their research and findings removed from the scientific records and their careers brought to a premature halt no matter what their reputation was before they dared to try to publish any material that differed from the main stream scientific view. There are a large number of archaeological finds in Canada, North America and Mexico that show human activities (the shaping of stool tools) has been carried out for at least 250,000 years. All of these finds have been deliberately “lost” and the records of the paleoanthropologists suppressed and their reputations and careers shot to ribbons. Some of the most significant finds are buried so deep that they are never discussed. But one fact stands out most of all: the remains and other evidence of the existence of Cro-Magnon Man (Homo Sapien) living on Earth about 3.5 million years ago is to be found on every continent. In other words, humans did not originate in Africa but world-wide and at the same time.

“...we conclude that the total evidence, including fossil bones and artefacts, is most consistent with the view that anatomically modern humans have coexisted with other primates for tens of millions of years.”<sup>5</sup>

Not only is there overwhelming evidence that “modern man” lived on every continent the evidence that they were extremely advanced is also overwhelming. By advanced I mean that some of their understanding of the world and the stars were in advance of our own current understanding of these matters. I have covered some of these scientific findings in my previous books, especially “The Human Soul” and “Project Human Extinction” and so will only briefly mention some of the findings here.

Objects that archaeologists identified as “glass table ornaments” found in ancient Sumeria and dated to at least 5,000 years old turned out to be optical lenses that are so advanced that the design of these lenses is more advanced than current lens design. The Sumerian lenses contain “pockets” in the glass that can be filled with various gasses that means that the focal length can be altered to suit virtually any focus requirements. These lenses can be used both as microscopes and telescopes just by altering the gas pressure inside the lens “pockets”.

An engineer called Professor Alexander Thom surveyed many hundreds of stone circles and stone monuments in Britain, Ireland and Europe during the 1950’s and 1960’s. His surveys were accurate to tolerances of less than one millimetre.

From his surveys, Prof. Thom concluded that the people who had built the circles and monuments used Pythagorean geometry to construct them and used a standard means of measurement called the “megalithic yard”.

Prof. Thom also realised that the stone circles and monuments were aligned to either stars or sun rise/sun set at critical times of the year and so was the inventor of Archaeo-astronomy.

The problem is that the Celtic peoples who built these stone circles and monuments did so at least two thousand years before Pythagoras was born.

Prof. Thom’s findings did not make him popular amongst either archaeologists or scientists as he proved beyond doubt that people of the ancient world were considerably more advanced than anyone wanted to consider and so his work was ignored and never spoken of.

***

The megalithic yard is also to be found as the standard measuring length across the ancient world – by ancient I mean before at least three thousand years BC.

An identical measurement was used by the Ancient Sumerians where they called it a “Kush” – scientifically known as a Mesopotamian Kush.

This Megalithic yard relates to the circumference of the Earth, the rotation and orbit of the moon and the orbit of Venus. It also relates to time measurements and measurements of volume and weight connecting both the British system of pints and pounds to the metric system of litres and kilo-grams.

The length of the megalithic yard, if used as a pendulum, also produces a musical scale that is used by the Australian Aborigine peoples in their sacred didgeridoo music that harmonises with the Earth’s own frequencies.<sup>6</sup>

The only ancient measuring system that does not directly use the megalithic yard is the Minoans and even then, the Minoan system has correlations with the megalithic yard when used in multiples.

***

Even the Great Pyramid of Cheops on the Giza plateau in Egypt was built using the megalithic yard.

The Great Pyramid was built so accurately that modern attempts to build even half scale replicas have failed to match it in terms of tolerances.

In fact every attempt to build a replica, on whatever scale, has failed as modern technology is not capable of replicating the building techniques, and their accuracy.

***

These are just a very few examples of how discoveries made by scientists of all disciplines have been deliberately and systematically removed from our knowledge. Because the findings have not fitted in with the publicly allowed view of human history, all of these amazing findings have not seen the light of day.

The scientific world has built a fantasy story of human history, how the universe works and every aspect of life within this universe to suit an agenda that is deliberately designed to hide the facts and present us with a version of reality that fits into an agenda. But whose agenda is it? – see below.

So for all of those morons who used to ask me at talks if there was any scientific “proof” of what was contained in the Akashic, the answer is this:

Firstly, if the science these morons referred to was the public face that science presents; then the answer is no.

Secondly, if you do some research and begin to scratch through the public veneer that the scientific world presents, you will find that there is overwhelming evidence that the Akashic is correct in virtually all aspects of human history.

This is what I mean by we need to alter the way in which we think. Whenever you encounter a piece of scientific “proof” ask yourself “is this true?” or is it part of the same agenda to blind us to our true history and heritage. Instead of taking scientific pronouncements at face value question them; carry out a little research of your own and you will soon find that your view of the world, and humanity’s place within it, is so so different to what you were propagandised into believing it was.

Always ask; always question – that way you might just arrive at some kind of truth at who you really are and what your purpose on Earth is.

“If you ask a question, you are an idiot for five minutes.

If you do not ask a question, you are an idiot for life.”<sup>7</sup>

Who Is Behind It?

Scientific research, in all fields of science, requires money in order for the research to be carried out. This funding can be from universities as part of a teaching project; but is more usually funded from institutions, companies, governments or foundations that have a particular interest in a region of research.

If governments, the funding is usually for a military project or a region of public concern or of public health. If private companies, it usually is to find the health benefits, or not, of a particular product or pharmaceutical drug. If from institutions or foundations, it is usually because that organisation has a particular interest in a region of research.

In the 1930’s, the Rockefeller Foundation decided to use some of its vast funds to finance projects in virtually all regions of scientific research – from archaeology to psychiatry; from medicine to anthropology. The Foundation also gave a massive research grant to the Kaiser Wilhelm 3rd Clinic in Germany for Eugenics research<sup>9</sup> whose work was continued in the Nazi concentration camps.

So why did this particular Foundation make all of these funds available?

To quote one of its officials:

“...Apart from the fascination of gaining some knowledge of the nature of the mind-brain-body relationship, the practical values in such studies are potentially enormous. Only thus may we gain information about our behaviour of the sort that can lead to wise and beneficial control”<sup>8</sup>.

So knowledge of human behaviour throughout our history was to be gathered together in order to find ways of controlling the population – the beginnings of the New World Order.

Population Control

As part of the plans laid out in the Rio de Janeiro Climate Conference was the requirement that the human population be reduced to “a manageable five hundred million”.

So how do you set about killing that many people?

Wars?

Since the UNCED Rio de Janeiro Conference in 1992, there have been wars in Iraq (twice), Afghanistan, Libya and several African countries have had armed conflicts, many of which have been dragging on for over twenty years.

The death toll from all of these wars runs into many millions.

But becoming directly caught up in these armed conflicts is not the only way of dying as the effects of some weapons continues for many, many years.

The United Nations published a study into the effects of the use of “depleted uranium” weapons, published in 2005<sup>9</sup>, summarises as:

“There is no viable future generation in Afghanistan and that Iraq is likely to head the same way”.

We have seen, in recent news reports that it is indeed the case in Iraq as the number of birth defects has increased by several hundred percent since the war in Iraq began.

Not only that, but the British Atomic Weapons Research Establishment published its own report to the British government that the dust cloud from the “shock and awe” bombing of Iraq blanketed the whole of western Europe with a dust cloud of radiation over one hundred times more deadly than the radioactive cloud produced by the Chernobyl nuclear power station accident.

Service men and women who have returned from Afghanistan and Iraq have exhibited symptoms of what has been called “Gulf War Syndrome” which was caused by the radiation from depleted uranium weapons. Where these service men and women have attempted to produce children, the number of birth defects is extremely high.

The same applies across the parts of Europe that were under the radiation cloud: birth defects and massively falling birth rates have been reported in all of these affected countries. Some parts of Britain now have an infant mortality rate higher than some so-called Third World countries<sup>10</sup>.

So the death toll of these conflicts is not limited to the battlefields. The use of “battlefield nuclear weapons” has a global impact, the extent of which is only now beginning to be seen.

To the death of many millions in the war zones, now has to be added millions more who were never caught up in the immediate area – DU weapons can only be described weapons of mass destruction on a continental scale.

Medical Treatment

Do people die of the medical treatment they receive?

According to an American Medical Association<sup>11</sup> (AMA) study, more people die of the medical treatment they receive than any other single cause in the western world.

Take a scenario we are all familiar with:

You have symptoms of ill health so you take yourself off to your doctor. The doctor prescribes you some pills. You take the prescription to your pharmacist who fills the prescription and you take the pills exactly as your doctor told you to.

The doctor prescribed the pills in the correct dosage for your sex and weight in accordance with the manufacturer’s guidelines. The pharmacist filled the prescription exactly as the doctor instructed and you, being a good patient, take the pills exactly as directed by your doctor and the pharmacist.

What do you think the outcome of these actions is likely to be?

According to the AMA, every year in America one hundred and seventy six thousand people die.

According to the British Medical Association (BMA), every year in Britain two hundred and fifty thousand people are hospitalised of whom ten thousand die.

On a broader level, the AMA study looked at the effectiveness of all medical treatment and broke their findings down into two main categories.

1. People who consulted their medical practitioner and received treatment appropriate to their symptoms. Death resulted as a direct result of this treatment, no other factors were involved.

The annual death toll in this category was seven hundred and sixty thousand.

2. You have a serious illness for which you are receiving medical treatment but the determining factor of whether you lived or died is purely the medical treatment you received.

The annual death toll in this category was two million.

As far as I am aware, the BMA has not carried out a study similar to that of the AMA but it has stated that the annual British death toll under category one of the AMA study is ninety three thousand people<sup>12</sup>.

The AMA concludes its report by commenting that they consider the figures to be “the tip of the iceberg”.

Given that prescriptive drugs are marketed and prescribed world-wide and that medical treatment is virtually the same throughout western countries, it would be fair to assume that over twenty million people die every year as a direct result of the medical treatment they receive.

The problem with these kinds of reports is that they do not get reported in the media. The media, in all of its various manifestations, is controlled by five people, all of whom are Bildebergers. These five people determine what is, and what is not, published in newspapers, magazines, books, TV, radio and the internet and so much information of this nature is deliberately withheld from the public.

I must apologise here because I have misplaced my notes about this particular individual but he deserves to be mentioned for his bravery – this was the British doctor who told the truth about the MMR vaccine and autism.

This particular doctor realised that many of the children he was treating had symptoms of autism and these symptoms seemed to develop shortly after the children had been vaccinated with the measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) vaccine.

When the doctor went public with his research, he was criticised by his colleagues, sacked by the health authority he worked for and struck off the medical register.

Since the doctor’s treatment, fifteen studies have been carried out into his claims and all of these studies confirm his findings: the MMR vaccine has a strong causal link with autism.

Given the case of this doctor, as well as several other scientific professionals, when he was Prime Minister, Tony Blair had all public employee contracts changed to contain a clause along the lines of:

If a government employee or an employee working for a company that handles government contracts speaks out about their work and the hazards found by that work, the employee will be sacked, possibly be criminally prosecuted and lose all pension rights for the rest of their lives. Several other governments have also added similar clauses into their employee contracts.

So is it any wonder that we hear so little in the mainstream press about what is really going on in the world?

The only way of getting through this blanket censorship is to start thinking “outside of the box”.

If an announcement is made by governments or transnational companies, always ask yourself why? If an announcement is being made, it will be to cover up something or to put a spin on the situation that the government or the transnational company wants to present you with. If it is a subject that interests you, investigate it – it is always possible to obtain information from non-official sources if you are prepared to look.

This is another example of altering the way in which we think. Do not accept political or government claims at face value – they are trying to present an image not facts. More often than not, governments act on behalf of their own self interests or the interests of industrialists or transnational companies – the wants and rights of the electorate are very far down the list of government priorities.

I could go on about the medical profession - try checking out the truth about vaccines, for example - but I am sure that you can see what I mean about how easy it is to kill people by the million and hide the statistics.

This is what I mean by we need to raise our level of thinking.

If we are to get back on track for our aim of re-integrating the whole of the soul – the higher self – back into the body, then we need to think about the world around us and, in particular, the world as presented by the New World Order.

But what is the New World Order, and all of its many tentacles, all about and who controls them?

Even the Illuminati, who do control the many organisations that are all secretly working to bring about the New World Order, are themselves controlled.

So who is ultimately responsible for misleading, misdirecting and misguiding us in this way?

The Velon

The truth about who controls the politicians, the Bildebergers and the Illuminati lies outside of our galaxy.

I have written a great deal about the race who call themselves Velon in several of my books (see Universal Soul, Human Soul, Project Human Extinction and The Human Plan? or the Annunaki Plan?) and so am only going to give a brief history here. Also, as I don't stop researching what is going on, some new information has come to light about some of the origins of the Velon story. It is actually quite ancient information; it is just new to me.

The Velon are a semi-physical race that have divided themselves up into six different "groups". These divisions into groups are along the lines of humans dividing themselves up into Christian, Muslim, Jewish etc. – a splitting into groups based along religious beliefs.

These six groups call themselves:

Oa, Mila, Jjundaa, Johnaan, Hathor and Annunaki.

Most people will be unfamiliar with most of these names except, perhaps, for Hathor and Annunaki.

The reason why most will be unfamiliar with the names the Velon have given to themselves is because they do not often identify themselves by these names but prefer to use a number of disguises in order to fool as many people as possible. The Velon communicate by channelled means under such names as:

Ashtar Command, Great White Brotherhood, Ascended Masters, Galactic Federation, Galactic Federation of Light, many hundreds of "Angels" and "Arch-angels" and the likes of Lord Sananda who claims to be the "Christ Consciousness" as well as many other individuals and organisations.

However, most of the Velon-created organisations have used the means of channelled messages in an attempt to fool the population as a whole, the Annunaki have directed their attentions towards those who have political and financial control. In order to do this, the Annunaki took control of the Illuminati as soon as it was formed and made them believe that the Annunaki are their "creator gods" and that those who consider themselves to be the "Elite" of human society are Annunaki hybrids.

Not only have the Annunaki made this story up but they have also been promoting it by persuading politicians and world leaders, but in particular those who have the control over governments, that this plan is the way in which humanity was created and how we should progress. This plan first came about roughly 5,000 to 6,000 years ago and its ultimate aim is to reduce the human population to around about 500 million worldwide. In other words, the population of the whole world would reduce from the official count of 7 billion down to only 500 million. This reduction can not happen naturally. The 500 million that remain would become a "slave race" to the Annunaki.

The Annunaki Plan

This fantasy version of human history we will call The Annunaki Plan.

This plan works in two ways, both of which attacks and tries to force humans to forget The Human Plan, the story of human history, and follow the Annunaki Plan instead. This is its purpose. It might sound melodramatic or like the plot from a second-rate science fiction movie but it is happening and the biggest problem of all is that those who are in a position of power on Earth believe in this plan and are enforcing it upon the rest of the human population. This plan is also designed to come to fruition in 2012.

So what is this plan? (also see below).

Really it is a story that tries to hide our true history and impose a different version of the development of human life on Earth. The problem is that many thousands of ordinary people, worldwide, are falling for this plan without realising its implications and are welcoming in the Annunaki.

All of the recent requests for groups to meditate on a particular theme because it "helps the planet" or helps humans to "ascend" to a "fifth dimension", have been designed to help the Annunaki to fulfil this plan of theirs and are of no benefit to the Earth at all or to humans.

An example of this would be the mass meditation to “Fire up the Grid” (in August 2007) or the attempt at taking over the energy point under Silbury Hill in Wiltshire (on 7th August 2009) or the call for a mass meditation to “energise the crystal deposits under Brazil and Arizona” (on 15th-20th August 2009). All of these meditations were designed to fool people into believing that they were helping the Earth whereas what they were really doing was furthering the plans of the Annunaki or the Hathor and causing problems for the Earth and humanity – we’ll come back to this.

The Annunaki Fantasy Story

Here is the story that the Annunaki made up and is based on events both in the Velon solar system and events on Earth.

This is based on translations made by Zecharia Sitchin and published in his many books on the subject. The story is imprinted into clay tablets that have been found buried in the sands of ancient Sumeria that have lain there for over 5,000 years. Zecharia Sitchin was an expert on Sumerian cuneiform writing and it is he who has translated these clay tablets into English over the past 40 years. Zecharia Sitchin did not make this story up, all he has done is to translate ancient clay tablets and bring the story to light.

The story begins some time in the past when a new planet enters our solar system. This planet orbits at an angle to and in the opposite direction of the rest of the planets and has the name of Nibiru. Nibiru has an orbit that takes 3,600 years to complete, passing through our solar system and travelling out far into space before returning. On two of its orbits, it created a great deal of damage to the existing planets in our solar system and was responsible for creating our Earth by destroying another planet – the other half of this destroyed planet forming the asteroid belts.

I am only going to give a brief description here, if you want more detail you will have to read the books written by Zecharia Sitchin - they make a fascinating read even if they are wrong.

Following this disaster, the solar system finally settled down with Nibiru as a permanent member of the solar system but still only visiting us every 3,600 years.

The inhabitants of Nibiru are the Annunaki. This travelling through deep space eventually causes problems within Nibiru’s atmosphere and, after a period of study, the Annunaki come to the conclusion that to repair their atmosphere, they need to seed it with gold. They studied all of the planets within our solar system and discovered that the planet with the greatest amount of gold deposits is Earth so a plan is made whereby a party of Annunaki will travel to Earth and extract the necessary gold from seawater.

The individual placed in charge of the whole operation is called Enlil with an individual called Enki in a kind of chief engineer’s role. Both travel to Earth, together with a number of Annunaki who were to carry out the gold extraction from the sea, specifically the Red Sea and the North Africa coast.

The party arrives about 450,000 years ago setting up their main encampment in the region of Sumeria – between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers, a region they name Eden.

Everything goes well to start with but they cannot extract sufficient quantities of gold from the sea and switch their centre of operations to Africa where they excavate gold mines. Although they begin gold mining in Africa, their main centre of operations remains in Eden in Sumeria.

Eventually, Enlil leaves the planet leaving Enki in full control. As gold is mined, it is stockpiled until the next orbit of Nibiru brings it closer to Earth where it is then ferried back to their home world.

After a while, the Annunaki who are carrying out the mining work, begin to complain that it is much harder work than they signed on for, putting the whole operation at risk. Enki comes up with an idea and that is to genetically modify the proto-humans (probably Homo Erectus/Habilis) that are on the planet to make them more intelligent and able to carry out the hard work of mining.

The Annunaki have a technology that uses genetic engineering that they developed a very long time ago. This is a technology based on the use of something like a “computer master disc” called a Me (spelled Me but pronounced May) which is capable of managing immensely complex processes such as genetic manipulation and it is this technology which Enki puts to use to create a new slave race.

Following a great deal of trial and error, Enki succeeds in producing an Annunaki/Homo Erectus/Habilis hybrid. In other words, the genetic structure of the Annunaki is mixed with the genetic structure of Homo Erectus/Habilis to create a new type of human being. This new hybrid Enki calls "adamu".

At first, the adamu are unable to reproduce by themselves and so are born to Annunaki females. Again, they become tired of this, especially as there are an insufficient number of adamu to mine the gold in sufficient quantities. So Enki then sets to work again to make his adamu capable of sexual reproduction. In other words, Enki "creates" adamu in Eden but then further creates a female adamu (Eve, presumably) to allow the adamu to self-replicate. This now works extremely well, the adamu are reasonably intelligent and they work hard. They also begin to replicate in large numbers and the Annunaki train them to grow crops.

The adamu are short and dark whilst the Annunaki represent themselves as tall and pale. The main symbol adopted by the Annunaki is the "winged disc" – a central disc with eagle's wings on either side – a symbol also found in dynastic Egypt. We'll come back to the reason for this symbol a little later.

At this point, a problem begins to build. The Annunaki find the adamu females very attractive and begin to mate with them. This produces another hybrid form, with a much paler skin than the adamu, and these hybrids begin to demand that they have equal rights to the Annunaki themselves, after all, the Annunaki tradition is that the rights of inheritance passes through the male line and as the new hybrids have Annunaki fathers, they should have equal rights to the Annunaki who fathered them (it is these direct Annunaki/human hybrids that the Elite believe they are descended from).

This leads to a great upheaval within the Annunaki and Enlil is forced to return to Earth to rule on this problem of inheritance. Some of the new hybrids are accepted whilst others are not but, the final outcome is that Enlil orders that the adamu be allowed to die. In response, the Annunaki remove all support, food, medicine, etc for the adamu and, effectively leave them to die. However, the adamu prove to be extremely resilient and survive.

It was then noticed that the next orbit of Nibiru will bring it close to the South Pole which will have the effect of melting all of the ice causing a flooding of most of the Earth's surface together with major earthquakes and volcanoes.

Enlil orders Enki to evacuate the Annunaki off the planet's surface and further orders him to not inform the adamu of their fate.

However, Enki is very fond of his creations and secretly helps an adamu, called Utnapishtim (the Biblical Noah), to build an Ark to save as many of the adamu as possible as well as all types of animals and plants.

The Ark is actually a submarine boat and, instead of the animals "going in two by two", Utnapishtim has Me's which contain the genetic records of all life.

With the next orbit of Nibiru, the anticipated disruption begins and massive floods occur which also ends the last Ice Age: this all taking place about 13,000 years ago.

As this happened 13,000 years ago, (according to the Annunaki fantasy story) the scientific theories regarding human development in Africa and then the migration to the Americas were built around this Annunaki story regardless of the evidence contradicting these theories. As we saw above, the scientific establishment sticks to these dates and theories regardless of overwhelming evidence to the contrary.

Anyway, the flood waters finally recede and Enlil, Enki and the remainder of the Annunaki return to Earth. At first, Enlil is extremely angry that Enki disobeyed his orders but, eventually, he begins to realise that Enki was right to do so as the adamu prove to be very useful as a slave race.

The Annunaki set about repairing their infrastructure in Sumeria, or Eden, and decide to step up their gold mining operation as well as to establish a "way-station" on Mars.

The Mars way-station is decided upon as Nibiru's future orbits will take it closer to Mars than to the Earth and so it will be easier and more efficient to ferry the mined gold to Mars and then on to Nibiru as its orbits allow. In order to help in this increase in flight traffic they build "flight beacons" and flight control stations next to the River Nile – the Pyramids.

At this point, the story told in Zecharia Sitchin's translations gradually begins to tail off and does not come to any conclusions.

So, what does this story actually tell us? Well, it says that humans were created by the Annunaki to be a slave race – the adamu. The adamu are short, with dark skin and originate in Eden – modern day Iran and Iraq - but develop in Africa. The Annunaki, in Sitchin's translations, describe themselves as being "tall and blond" – Tall White Nordics it would appear.

The adamu thrive and multiply and travel to other regions of the Earth at the end of the last Ice Age, or just after, around about 13,000 years ago (this is the date given in the Annunaki fantasy story for the last Ice Age but there is no evidence for an Ice Age ending at this time, it is just scientific conjecture based on this story).

Up until this point, the adamu had been restricted to regions of Africa where the Annunaki were mining gold. There were also new hybrid adamu created by the Annunaki mating with adamu females presumably producing children with a skin colour much closer to that of the Annunaki - in other words, white.

Zecharia Sitchin insists that this story is the basis for the Biblical Old Testament. Unfortunately, some people believe that they are the direct descendents of the Annunaki/adamu hybrids and these people see themselves as being a more "Elite" group than the rest of humanity, who these Elite see as being descended from the adamu who were created to be slaves.

After all, if you are made "in God's image", you must be special and, therefore, above all other humans.

This "Elite" group has also given rise to racism and the concept of white supremacy. This elite group are the ones who make up the Illuminati, Bildebergers and the Thirty Third level Freemasons.

It has to be borne in mind that there is nothing within the Akashic that agrees with this story. However, there are some clues as to how aspects of this story arose which were then manipulated by the Annunaki to give us their fictitious version.

Firstly, are there any Earthly traditions to support the idea of "tall white" beings mating with early humans? The answer is yes, there are and they are centred around the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers, particularly modern northern Iraq, southern Turkey and Turkistan.

There are a group of beliefs which originate from this area, collectively known as the "Cult of Angels".

The main traditions of these cults are that the people living in this area called it Eden. The peoples are hunter gatherers who are invaded by a group of peoples who originate much further north. These northern invaders are much taller than the locals and are possibly albino, but certainly white – the origin of "tall white Nordics" perhaps. It is very likely that these northern invaders were a branch of a proto-human form known as Gigantopithecus.

They have almond shaped eyes which slope in towards the nose giving their skulls a "bird-like" appearance. These northerners also have traditions connected with birds, using bird feathers and bird wings in rituals and also practice human sacrifice. One of the main symbols connected with this "Cult of Angels" is the winged disc.

These white northerners are very aggressive and very charismatic, so much so that they treat the local inhabitants as slaves and take to themselves a god-like status. They mated with the local women and produced hybrid children, known as "children of the jars".

In order to feed their "gods", the peoples are forced into leaving behind their traditional hunter-gatherer way of life and become farmers.

Also in this region is the ancient Biblical city of Ur of the Chaldees where Abraham was born; Abraham being the "father" of the three main religions – Judaism, Islam and Christianity, but was also a member of the "Cult of Angels".

The eventual outcome is that having put up with these aggressive northerners for some time, they massacre them, totally destroying all of their kind.

Eventually, these peoples moved south from northern Iraq, or put another way, were cast out of Eden, and they moved to Egypt, taking these traditions and symbols with them with the white northerners transposed into their vengeful Gods.

These members of the "Cult of Angels" eventually left Egypt led by Moses, the Egyptian Pharaoh Akhenaton the third, and became the Jewish peoples with their traditional stories forming the basis of the Old Testament.

It is these cultural memories and traditions which the Annunaki have taken and modified to form the basis of their adamu story.

However, there is a little more to the story of those who originated in Eden than this.

Eden was located in northern Sumeria and these peoples travelled south into the ancient empire of Assyria.

At roughly the same time, the people who originated in southern Sumeria were on their own migration northwards. Both groups would have met each other somewhere within the Assyrian Empire.

The ancient Assyrians had their own traditions and “gods”, some of whom have names that are familiar from the Annunaki fantasy story.

The Assyrian god of the air was known as Enlil whilst the Assyrian god of water was Enki.

Like most ancient people’s, the ancient Assyrians avidly watched the skies and so were aware of the planets and their orbits. The ancient Assyrian name for the planet Jupiter was Neberu and Jupiter doesn’t travel anywhere, let alone out of our solar system every 3,600 years.

What we have happening in ancient Assyria is the mingling of three different traditions: the Assyrian, the southern Sumerian and the northern Sumerian from Eden.

Each of these three groups would have discussed their experiences and their traditions and beliefs with each other.

What the Annunaki did was to mix together these various beliefs and added a few of the events that had occurred in their own solar system.

When the Velon came to Earth, about three hundred years ago, the Annunaki travelled back in time to ancient Sumeria and dictated their fantasy story to Sumerian scribes who wrote it down in cuneiform writing onto clay tablets.

Zecharia Sitchin’s translations of these clay tablets state quite specifically that the story was dictated to a scribe who wrote it down on the clay tablets. In other words, this is not the natural, ongoing story of the peoples written down as their history developed but a story that was dictated in a finished, non-evolving way.

Secondly, is there any evidence whatsoever of a travelling planet which orbits Earth, whether called Nibiru or by any other name? According to the accepted archaeological view, virtually every single ancient site, from Stone Age onwards, was used as some kind of astronomical observatory. This means that humans have watched the skies for many thousands of years.

It is known that the ancient Sumerians and the ancient peoples of South America used telescopes with evidence pointing to their use over 18,000 years ago.

The Chinese have been keeping very accurate star charts and details of planetary movements for at least 5,000 years.

Celtic, Egyptian, Tibetan, Native North American, Inuit and Australian Aboriginal civilisations were all known to observe the skies with great accuracy, so much so that many ancient beliefs concerning the stars and star systems were not confirmed until very recently, some requiring the observational power of the Hubble Space Telescope before the ancient knowledge was believed by scientists.

Do any of these traditions have any records of a travelling planet – no. Do any of these traditions have any records of a planet appearing and disappearing every 3,600 years – no.

So the actual existence of Nibiru, and therefore the Annunaki, is not recorded anywhere in Earth traditions.

If Zecharia Sitchin’s translations of orbit times and planetary appearances are in any way accurate, then the last time that Nibiru passed close the Earth was about 2,200 years ago. Are there any records of a new planet entering our solar system at this time? – no. So as far as our historical records are concerned, there is no evidence of a travelling planet whether called Nibiru or anything else.

I also came across a reference to two comets called Enki and Enlil in a book about comets (sorry but I cannot remember the name of this book).

About 5,800 years ago, two comets, called Enki and Enlil were in close proximity to the Earth’s orbit, close enough for them to brush the magnetosphere. The comet Enki passed Earth in the southern hemisphere whilst Enlil was in the northern hemisphere.

If a comet brushes against the magnetosphere, it can cause the sky to turn either green or red – Sitchin’s translations makes mention of the sky turning red when Nibiru passed close enough to cause the South Pole to melt.

It seems as though the comet Enki is still in orbit around our solar system but the comet Enlil broke in two to form the Tuttle comet and the Schumaka Levy comet.

Given that comet Schumaka Levy crashed into Jupiter a few years ago, in mythological terms, it could be said that Enlil returned home to Neberu (the ancient Assyrian name for Jupiter).

But, does the Akashic record any planets with the name Nibiru? (apart from the ancient Assyrian name for Jupiter).

Yes, there is a planet called Nibiru that is inhabited by a race who call themselves Annunaki but they are nowhere near to our solar system, in fact they are not even of our galaxy but are in a galaxy 23 galaxies away from ours behind the constellation of Sagittarius.

The Real Annunaki Story

This is what the Akashic has to say about the Annunaki.

They originate in a solar system that has two suns, around these two suns orbit eight planets; three planets orbit one sun whilst four orbit around the other; the eighth planet orbits around both suns, taking the equivalent of 3,600 Earth years to do so. This eighth planet is known to its inhabitants as Anu as well as Nibiru.

This is obviously where the Annunaki originate although their solar system is known as Velus, after the primary solar system consciousness, and the inhabitants of the solar system are known as Velon.

The Velon peoples are semi-physical in energy patterns and so are much less physically dense than we are. Although collectively they are known as Velon, they have divided up themselves into six different races. These are: Oa, Mila, Jjundaa, Johnaan, Hathor and Annunaki.

Most of the population live on the main planet called Velus but also inhabit several of the other planets as well.

Some time ago, a disaster happened in the Velus system where one of the planetary moons collided with one of the planets (see my books for full details) causing a great deal of destruction and the population of that planet moved to other planets in the Velus system to avoid the catastrophe.

The home world of the Annunaki, called either Anu or Nibiru, has an atmosphere which is very dense in order to keep the surface habitable as the planet travels the vast distances as it orbits around both suns.

The nearest description of what this dense substance is made from would be gold.

As far as their solar system itself is concerned, the primary solar system consciousness, Velus, appears to have lost interest in its solar system as the suns are slowly dying.

The Velon are a peoples who have kept themselves very much to themselves with very little contact with any of the other races. In fact, they seem to have remained very much within their home galaxy and not ventured outside of it very much at all. However, about 1,000 years ago one of the Velon ships broke through the energy boundary of their home galaxy and discovered an energy flow.

Throughout this universe, there are always free moving energies. Some of these energy flows are targeted at specific regions to, say, help in that region's development. Unfortunately, for us, the energy flow detected by the Velon ship was the primary energy flow directed at our solar system (this energy is intended to help us in our experiment on Earth and is directed at Silbury Hill in Wiltshire).

The reporting of this energy flow caused a massive revelation within the Velus system and sparked a race to try to be the first of the six Velon races to arrive at the end of this energy flow.

The Velus consciousness seems to have had some kind of strange "religious" moment at this news and began to see the Velon as "God's chosen people" who should live on "God's chosen planet". In other words, the Velon should move to Earth.

The first Velon ships to arrive at our solar system did so about 300 years ago. On seeing that the Earth was inhabited, they decided to observe rather than to land – had they landed on Earth at that time, humanity's chances of still being on Earth now would have been very slim.

Again, there is a great deal more detail available than we have time for here, however several things did happen.

The majority of the Velon races decided that they did not want to supplant another peoples and so they went to a new solar system, leaving what could be called "the conquest of the Earth" to the most aggressive of the Velon – the Annunaki and the Hathor.

What must be remembered is that these two groups were in competition with each other with the prize being the domination of the Earth. To achieve these aims the two groups took two different courses of action.

The Hathor by approaching people through channelled means – they were very successful at this and persuaded one large group in America to sow the seeds of humanity's destruction for themselves by building two devices called “celestoriiums”.

These were copper lined shafts 333 feet (100 metres) deep which were packed with programmed quartz crystals. These devices were designed to draw the souls out of the body and eject it to the now empty Velus solar system.

The first of these two devices was activated on the 10th April 2006 and those who were a part of this group felt the full effects of this device.

Fortunately, those who act as guardians of this Earth arrived in time to stop this mass murder from taking place. Had both devices been activated at the same time, everyone on Earth would have been affected, to one degree or another.

The Hathor have been, generally speaking, very quiet since but have continued to channel very suspect music to this group.

The Annunaki, however, took a different approach. The Annunaki had studied the Earth, and humanity, in great detail and had gained an in-depth knowledge of how we thought and how we acted. They saw our religious beliefs and decided to put together a story which blended together the history of their solar system and some of our basic beliefs. What they finally came up with is the story we very briefly outlined earlier.

In other words, the Annunaki story is a complete fabrication designed very deliberately to make humanity believe that the Annunaki are the “gods” of the Old Testament and that they, the Annunaki, are our creators.

The story also made us a slave race and so they hoped that if we fully accepted the story, when they made themselves known on Earth in the present time, we would automatically see them as our “gods” and do whatever it was they instructed us to do as their slaves.

This is not to say that I think Zecharia Sitchin is complicit in the Annunaki plan. I believe him to be totally innocent in this. What Sitchin has done is to take a collection of clay tablets that are covered in cuneiform writing and translate them. His translations have brought the Annunaki story to light. What Sitchin has done is to honestly translate the writing on clay tablets that have been buried under the sands of what was ancient Sumeria for over 5,000 years.

Whilst Sitchin's earlier books appear to be straight forward translations of these tablets, there is a video available on YouTube that gives convincing evidence that Sitchin was “recruited” by the Illuminati and a change of emphasis is noticeable in his later books<sup>13</sup>.

Zecharia Sitchin died in 2010.

The reason why the story and the tablets, have been buried away for 5,000 years is that the Annunaki travelled back in time to deliberately plant their story.

I am not going into the rights and wrongs of the concept of time travel here, but the reason the Annunaki chose Sumeria over 5,000 years ago is very specific.

The region known as southern Sumeria is where a peoples lived who explored human life in what could be described as “scientific” ways.

It was the southern Sumerians who developed medicine, surgery, herbalism, aromatherapy, Ayurveda, and a whole lot of other ways of working with the body.

All of this information was originally communicated psychically but, by about 7,000 years ago, we had generally lost these psychic capabilities and the Sumerians began to develop a written form of language which archaeologists call Cuneiform.

This is why the Annunaki chose to travel back to this time; this was the first time that written records began to be kept.

When they travelled back in time, the Annunaki had taken with them their, to us, very advanced technology.

To meet their energy needs they used what they called “djed pillars”. These are virtually inexhaustible crystal-based energy sources which have the energy capacity equivalent to several power stations; they also took their Me technology with them.

About the time the story was recorded, the people of Sumeria began to migrate to other lands; the northern Sumerians to Egypt and the southern Sumerians through Babylon, in ancient Assyria, then to India and finally settled in Tibet.

The Annunaki, who were in southern Sumeria, decided to travel with the southern Sumerians and they also took up residence in Tibet, where they remained until fairly recent times.

The Annunaki have a problem living amongst humans because of their appearance. The Velon vary between 8 and 15 feet in height (2.4 to 4.5 metres), depending on which one of the six races they are, with their heads, proportionately, being very small.

Given this appearance, they could not mix amongst humans and took to hiding. However, during this time, they did begin experimenting with their Me<sub>14</sub> technology to try to genetically alter their appearance so that they looked more like humans.

This Me technology allows them to fully detach the soul from the body and reside within the Me, the Me then builds a new body from scratch. Once the new body form is complete, the soul is then slowly downloaded from the Me into the new body. Following experiments covering several thousand years, they perfected a body type that is almost identical to a human body but is pure Velon. Fortunately, extremely few of these Annunaki humans exist (no more than fifty).

Obviously there is great deal more to the Annunaki story than we have room for here. For more information see: The Universal Soul, The Human Soul, Project Human Extinction and The Human Plan? or The Annunaki Plan?

So, the Annunaki kept watch on human development and human actions and aspirations. When they felt the time was right, they began their move to control the future of humanity.

This was in 1776 when the international banker, Amschel Rothschild, decided to bring together 12 of his most trusted friends and colleagues to form the Bavarian Illuminati.

The Annunaki moved very quickly into control of this group and have been in control of them ever since.

The first thing the Illuminati did was to take control of the Freemasons (at the Congress of Wilhelmsbad in 1778) as the Freemasons had access to secret information that related to the Human Plan and other related matters of human history.

Next, the Illuminati re-formed the Knights Templar (the Knights having been destroyed by the Vatican and the French King in 1307 – the “official” ending of the Knights Templar being in 1312) because of their original role in safeguarding the Ark of the Covenant and the knowledge it contained – the Tables of Testimony.

These Tables of Testimony were actually a green crystal which had been programmed with the whole of human history and so showed the Annunaki story as a lie.

The Annunaki do not control the Ark and so have not been able to destroy the crystal.

With the Freemasons and the Knights Templar firmly under Illuminati and Annunaki control, they began to look for ways of flexing their muscle and begin the process of building A New World Order.

Hopefully you can begin to see how the scientific version of human history as well as the Biblical version originated.

The scientific version of human history ties in with the Annunaki story in that the first humans appeared in Africa and began to migrate around the world about 13,000 years ago.

The Annunaki story has played a part in forming the Biblical belief that Adam (or adamu) and Eve were created as the first humans in the Garden of Eden but were to populate the Earth after the Flood 13,000 years ago.

So if the scientific version of events is based on the Annunaki fantasy story that is deliberately intended to mislead us, how do we overcome the problem?

This is where we need to begin to think in different ways, to think on a higher level.

Virtually everything we think we know about our history, our origins and our place within the Universe is false and that false view is perpetuated by those who are under the control of the Velon led Illuminati.

The Velon/Illuminati have attempted to control all aspects of our lives but the two most successful regions are with science and education.

Universal History

Very little within our history or science books reflect the real breadth of humanity, our experiences or our potential. To find out the real history of humanity, we need to turn to our collective mass consciousness, the Akashic.

This true version of human history the Akashic records as The Human Plan.

Some people will find much of what follows to be a little weird, especially if they have not before considered other forms of life throughout the Universe. Whilst for others, it will fill in the gaps to explain what is really going on.

To understand ourselves, and our place within the Universe, as well as our place on Earth, we have to return to the beginnings of the Universe and the purpose of its Creation. This information is taken from the Akashic but backed up by “physical” research where that research is available.

To give a full history is obviously not possible in the space we have available. So this can only be a very brief view of history – if you require a fuller version, all I can suggest is that you read my books.

For once, science originally managed to get one thing right and that is the age of the Universe – 14.5 billion years old (actually, cosmologists have recently dropped it to 13.5 billion - so science is wrong again!).

Our Universe did not just spontaneously spring into being but was created by a being that encompasses all of the energy available everywhere.

This Creationary source had a thought, a kind of “what would happen if...”

For our Universe, the thought was Freedom of Choice. That is, each soul that was to be created to explore this Thought has the absolute right to choose their actions and their place within this Universe.

The only “Law” that applies to this Universe is that no one can act in such a way as to remove someone else’s freedom to choose their own actions.

There are other universes but the others explore different thoughts, other ways of being and, really speaking, these other universes do not have a bearing on our universe and so, for all practical purposes, they can be ignored.

There are two points to remember here. The first is that everything is energy. What looks and feels solid to us is, in fact, a collection of energy frequencies which our brains “see” as being physical but is in fact compacted and compressed frequencies of energy.

The other point is that every living thing is a consciousness, a soul. From the Universe itself, the galaxies, solar systems, stars, planets, animals and plants, all are souls. Some exist as a whole soul, some as part of another soul and some as group souls.

Nevertheless, all is consciousness and all is energy. That is how our universe is constructed and how it works – souls using their potential to make use of the energies that are available to them.

I see the words soul and consciousness as being interchangeable. So if I sometimes use the word soul or sometimes use the word consciousness, they both mean the same thing.

Or, as noted above, scientists have begun to call this consciousness energy electromagnetic energy – a 5th dimension.

So, fourteen and a half thousand million years ago, this Creationary source had a thought and this thought was brought into being by creating a balloon of energy – the universal envelope – into which all of the energy frequencies necessary for life and exploration of the Thought was placed.

At each stage of development, other energies were added as necessary until we have the universe we are familiar with today.

This originating Thought could also be described as a Question – a “what would happen if?”

In order to explore the Creator’s Question, individual souls were created and provided with enough energy potential to fulfil their chosen role.

The first life were thirteen beings who, effectively, make up the universal envelope. These Thirteen maintain the balance of energies within the universe and act as co-creators as and when necessary.

The next level of development was the creation of those souls who would bring galaxies into being.

These were followed by souls who could build solar systems and then all of the way down to individual planets.

Once these consciousnesses were in place, the first free-moving and free-acting souls were brought into creation.

These first beings entered into our universe 100 million years ago. There are six of these first races who are of pure soul energy. In other words, they do not have any physical form or physical density, just pure energy. These six non-physical races are where the souls of virtually all humans originate.

The next stage of development took place about 30 million years ago with the Creation of seven semi-physical races.

These are the races that are responsible for UFO sightings over the years<sup>14</sup>.

By semi-physical, I mean that they have a physical form and a physical density and, to each other, they appear as solid as we do to each other. However, if you had one of these beings standing in front of you now, the chances are that you would not even know that they were there, unless you were very psychic. The reason for this is that they are constructed of energy frequencies that are outside of the ability of human senses to detect these kinds of frequencies.

There are seven of these semi-physical races, each having their own characteristics and each having their own region of the universe to live in, usually encompassing several galaxies.

Some of these races we have names for such as Sirians or Pleiadeans whilst others we have only star chart references for, such as NGC 584 whilst others we only have nick-names for such as the infamous Greys or the Blues.

Generally speaking, all of these races are benevolent and have been helpful to the Earth and to us over many thousands of years. The only exception is the Velon we spoke about earlier.

So these are the thirteen races that make up the free-moving, free-acting and free-choosing souls who inhabit this universe. Each of these races is made up of many billions of souls.

The six non-physical races can move freely throughout the whole of the universe without the need for any form of craft to travel. They just think themselves where they want to go and they just travel along the thought.

The seven semi-physical races do need craft and these are the UFO's or NTV's – Non-Terrestrial Vehicles as they are now called. These semi-physical races have also spread out from their original home worlds and live on many planets in different galaxies.

To avoid confusion, when I talk of these races, I talk of soul-origin. What I mean by this is, I often get people coming up to me and saying that they have had past-life regression or they have been told by a medium or clairvoyant that they come from – let's say – the planet "Zog". That may well be true, they may very well be a "Zogolith" but, their soul origin might be Pleiadean or Sirian. To give you an example. Some years ago, people were contacted by a race who called themselves Oomite. They were very polite beings who contacted people by very politely written letters. Now they were correct in calling themselves Oomites as that was their home planet but, their soul origin is Pleiadean.

Earth Development

Now we come to the development of life on Earth.

Our solar system is unique. It was designed to be a place where another aspect of the Question asked by the Creator could be explored – is life at the energy densities that we consider "physical" possible? In order to explore this aspect of the "Question", our solar system was planned to be, essentially, self-contained. Our solar system is also positioned at the back end of nowhere.

This positioning was also quite deliberate as we could explore all of the aspects we wished to explore but also be separate from the ebb and flow of universal energies and universal life.

Our solar system is also unique in the sense that each of the planets are individual souls. In virtually all other solar systems, the sun is the primary consciousness and any planets are a part of that sun's consciousness.

In other words, in those solar systems, the sun and planets are one soul.

In our solar system, because we were to be a new experiment in life, it was decided that each of the planets, as well as the sun, needed to have as full a potential for life as possible and so the sun and each planet are individual souls.

Our solar system began to form about 40 million years ago. I appreciate that 40 million years is nowhere near the 4 billion, or so, years that geologists talk about, but 40 million years is what the Akashic records.

There were originally 13 planets in our system, each developing life in the way in which that planet's consciousness decided to create life. Each of our planets is a creator in its own right, this is why a full consciousness was needed for each planet, to maximise potential and creativity.

Every single one of these 13 planets developed their own forms of life, all of which was what we would term physical.

Each planet designed and created forms of life which it felt was appropriate to its own consciousness. This provided for the maximum amount of creativity and diversity and all were successful. Each planet supported life and the Universe gloried in the complexity and variations in form.

Our Earth was a slightly late starter in this process as She did not begin to fully develop life until about 25 million years ago. However, She was as successful as all of the other planets in developing a huge range of life-forms.

The Earth began with the extremely small but very rapidly moved to big – as in the dinosaurs, giant trees and giant insects. The reason for this was to do with the effects of physical density on the physical body, once it was realised that smaller forms of life were just as feasible as the large, mammals became the primary forms of life and the plant-life was also modified to suit the needs of these kinds of animals.

The scientific view is that there have been a series of ice ages or natural disasters which wiped out all life and then new life began to develop after these disasters. This is not true, apart from one major catastrophe, the forms of life, and the changes that have taken place to them, have all occurred because of a deliberate choice of the planet – a kind of fine tuning of design or the realisation that some life-forms were not fully viable and needed to be changed for new designs.

In other words, all of the animal and plant life on Earth has been designed and created or adopted by the Earth herself.

With a Universe of free choice, why would the Creator impose It's view on anything?

About 3.9 million years ago, four of the planetary consciousnesses decided that they did not want to remain a part of this solar system and chose to leave. Unfortunately, in removing themselves from their planetary shells, they triggered a solar system-wide disaster which virtually destroyed all life in the solar system.

The first two planets to leave did so quite rapidly and the planets the planetary consciousness had built around themselves, for want of a better word, exploded.

One of these planets was positioned between Venus and Earth and the other between Mars and Jupiter. The resulting explosions created a wave of destruction throughout the whole solar system.

Virtually all solar system life was destroyed. Only two planets still supported life: Earth and Ganymede, one of the Moons of Jupiter.

Virtually all of the life on Earth was destroyed, the planet was rocked on its equatorial axis and a large quantity of the atmosphere was lost.

Life on Earth was almost abandoned because of this disaster but the Earth decided to start again.

Apart from Ganymede, all of the other planets decided to think again and did not begin rebuilding life until very recently.

It is this disaster which the Annunaki decided to use as the background for their fantasy story but blending it with events that took place within their own solar system.

The debris from these exploding planets formed the asteroid belts and several planets, including Earth, gained a moon.

The other two planets, who had decided to leave, did so much more gently, moving the whole planet to a position just outside of the solar system's limits.

The location and influence of the two planets have given rise to speculation, in recent years, of a tenth planet – Planet X or more accurately, NASA has named this planet Tyche (pronounced ty-kee).

The Development of Human Life

Three million, six hundred thousand years ago, the Earth began again but, this time, She was not beginning from scratch.

The primary purpose of the Earth, and our solar system, was to explore the possibility of “physical” life, that is, a physical body which was capable of containing a whole soul.

Each of the planets, throughout the solar system, had begun their own exploration of this requirement.

On Earth, She had been experimenting with a body-form closely appearing like our own human form – Neanderthal Man.

She was not alone in this choice, the planetary consciousness that is Mars had also been developing a primary life-form along human lines. However, the Mars “humans” were a little more advanced than the ones the Earth had developed so when the Earth decided to begin again, She adopted the proto-human form from Mars. We know this Earth/Martian hybrid proto-human as “Cro-Magnon Man” (Homo Sapien).

This is why Cro-Magnon Man appeared spontaneously across the whole planet 3.6 million years ago.

So what we have, from about 3.6 million years ago, is a basic human form, Cro-Magnon Man, as the basis for a being which the Earth hopes will develop into a form which will be capable of accommodating a full soul.

This is the fundamental question behind life on Earth – is it possible to build a fully physical being who has the whole of the soul contained within the body, this is part of the fundamental Question this Universe was Created to answer.

Following the solar system-wide disaster, the removal of four planets, this is what the Earth began to explore.

Life develops in two stages, there is a primary act of creation and then, what has been created is allowed to evolve by itself into the directions that it is able or chooses to go. So the process of creation and evolution go hand in hand – neither could happen without the other. There is no point in creating something if it cannot evolve and something cannot evolve if it was not first created.

In this instance, as with most planetary life throughout the universe, it is the consciousness of the home planet that creates the forms of life and they are then given the opportunity to develop, to evolve, as they will.

This is how life on Earth works, the Earth decides what to create, She builds an energetic template, a pattern of energies around which that form of life will grow and the densities of energies available on Earth give it its physical substance.

This is how all life on Earth came into being and how they continue to exist. If the Earth changes Her mind, or feels that a particular form of life is not really viable, She removes the energetic template and the form of life gradually disappears off the planet.

How humans began life is slightly different in that the Earth adopted our energetic template from one developed on Mars, but the principle is still the same. Human development has occurred by our energetic template being modelled and refined until we end up with our current body form of Homo Sapien Sapien.

But, it is not quite that simple, some modifications were made to our human form that made us a much greater being that we currently are.

We might think that we are the pinnacle of human development, according to scientific arrogance, whereas, in fact, we are considerably less than we once were.

Atlantis

The place where these modifications took place was on an island we know as Atlantis.

Atlantis was more of a continent than an island as it stretched from the west coast of Ireland, diagonally across the Atlantic Ocean as far as the Caribbean basin. This particular continent was chosen as it was detached from all other land masses because if anything went wrong with the experimental work that was proposed to happen on Atlantis, no other forms of life would be affected.

You have to remember that we live in a universe where every single soul has absolute freedom of choice to choose their actions. Nobody can act in such a way as to remove freedom of choice. In this way, every single Cro-Magnon Man (and woman) was asked if they wanted to take part in the type of work that was proposed to be carried out. Although not very developed, they were able to understand what was being asked of them. Some of the population of Atlantis said that they did want to be a part of what was going on whilst others said they did not.

Those who did not want to be a part of what was happening were moved to another part of the planet, of their choosing, and were left to develop as they chose.

If nobody had wanted to be a part of this experiment, the experiment would not have occurred and Cro-Magnon Man would have been allowed to develop as it would, without any kind of outside interference.

This is freedom of choice in action.

Those who remained on Atlantis underwent a form of genetic acceleration.

Those who originate on NGC 584 are master geneticists. As far as they are concerned, they have developed skills which they freely offer to the rest of the universe without limit or without charge. They do what they do because they are masters at it and they enjoy what they do, there is no other reason behind their actions.

They are not like our current human geneticists who, apart from not actually knowing what they are doing, have all sorts of hidden agendas behind their work and we will touch on this later. But for now, let us return to Atlantis.

The problem with early Cro-Magnon was that, like all animal life on Earth, they had a group soul. In other words they were not individual souls but a part of a mass soul to which they were all connected.

At birth, they started to draw from this mass soul and became individuals. Some drew in more of this mass soul and so were more intelligent and more physically developed than others. But, either way, they were not individuals as we would understand the term but more like a flock or a herd.

Their DNA structures were also very crude, just sufficient to give an individual an identity.

What was done was that their energetic templates were developed so that the body became more advanced and this created more DNA.

At each readjustment of their energies, the more they advanced until they reached a point where they were able to break away from their soul group consciousness and become individuals with the capacity to take on their own souls.

In order to fulfil this potential, the next stage was for an individual soul to come to Earth and take on the physical body that had been developed. This was not body snatching but by developing a new energy template, it was possible for a soul to come to Earth, borrow the energy template and to build a physical body around the template – a process called adult birth. This is the true origin of the Adam and Eve story.

This process is also one which the Annunaki have stolen to add to their own fantasy version of human development. We all have deep seated memories of Atlantis and our genetic acceleration. What the Annunaki hoped to achieve with their version of our history was to make us believe that our currently very vague memories of our own genetic acceleration was in fact carried out by the Annunaki to create the adamu and not our own decisions.

With this adult birth process proven to work, more souls came from the Universe and a community of human beings began to develop on Atlantis.

Most of the souls who came to Earth to be a part of this new experiment were from the non-physical races, with some coming from the semi-physical races. The proportions at this stage were roughly three quarters were of the non-physical races and about one quarter from the semi-physical races.

This is how human life was developed on Atlantis and this is what the Earth considers to be a true Human Being – a whole soul within a physical body. There was not the division between the physical aspect of the soul and the higher aspect of the soul as we currently experience life, but the whole of the soul within the physical body.

Our current state of being, the body containing the physical self with an attached, but not integrated, higher self, the Earth considers to be sub-human.

I will try to paint a picture of life on Atlantis although it is not so easy to do as we do not have the vocabulary to explain it fully, but I'll try my best.

The Earth's axis was vertical, not tilted as it is now, so the climate was very settled. Day time temperatures were in the low thirties centigrade and it did not rain very often (average global temperatures were about six degree centigrade). When it did rain, it was gentle and refreshing.

Carbon dioxide levels were higher than present. This higher level of carbon dioxide actually helps the brain to function more efficiently, something which was needed to help human development.

The current change in carbon dioxide levels is actually a natural process as we approach a time when we will be able to live as we once did on Atlantis. Current carbon dioxide levels are rising as part of a natural process and have nothing to do with human activities.

As far as humans were concerned, they were very much in advance of how we are now. We did not speak to each other but communicated psychically, this meant that there were no limits to our ability to communicate fully so there were never any misunderstandings.

If we wished to travel anywhere, we projected our thoughts to where we wished to be, a little like remote viewing, and then carried the body along with the thought – a process called translocation. Or by using this same process, we could be in two places at once – bi-location.

Our bodies were very much less dense than they are now so we needed very little in the way of solid food – generally just some fruit or if we needed a little more protein, we ate sea weeds which we synthesised for our needs.

We could communicate with all living things and so wild animals were never a threat, we just lived in total harmony with everyone and every thing. This is how human life should be lived, a true paradise.

This is a very long story and I have tried to tell it as best I can in my books so, to cut a long story short, things began to go wrong and, at the time, we could not work out why they had gone wrong.

The ultimate outcome was that we eventually, collectively, decided to destroy the continent. This we achieved psychically by opening up the mid-Atlantic fault line, surrounded the continent in volcanoes and deliberately sinking Atlantis into the Earth's molten core. This destruction occurring about 65,000 years ago.

The Destruction of Atlantis

Sinking the continent had far reaching and potentially devastating effects on the planet. The planet's axis tilted altering the climate. Many earthquakes and volcanoes were triggered together with massive tsunamis, creating huge areas of flooding and most of the life on Earth was threatened with extinction. The planet also shrank in size to about ten percent smaller than she is now. This is the real origin of the Biblical story of the flood and it occurred 65,000 years ago.

As far as the human population was concerned, those who were from the non-physical races returned to their home worlds whilst most of those who were from the semi-physical races stayed to help re-build the Earth and its life. This re-building work took over 40,000 years to complete and the Earth was fully ready to begin again about 20,000 years ago.

When we returned, by we I mean all of the souls who had chosen to be a part of this new experiment of being human, we were as we had been on Atlantis; the whole soul within the body and, also as on Atlantis, we did not have any children.

A Human Being is defined as a physical body which contains the whole soul and we had not fully worked out a mechanism for dividing the soul into separate parts so that children could be born and the rest of the soul could then be gradually introduced as the child grew to an adult.

So our return arrival on Earth was through adult birth. In the end, we thought sex looked like it had interesting possibilities and so we did eventually work out how to have children, around about 16,000 years ago.

On our return to Earth, instead of choosing a separate continent, as we had with Atlantis, we decided to build new "colonies" in six separate locations dotted around the planet. These were Britain, Ireland and northern France; Mexico, Guatemala and Belize; Southern Turkey, part of Syria, and Iran and Iraq (Sumeria); Egypt; Tibet; and Southern Greece.

Each of these six groups took on a particular role in terms of investigating what had gone wrong on Atlantis - why did we have the kinds of problems that led to our need to destroy a continent.

The one region which took something of a lead role in these investigations was the one in Southern Sumeria – this is the region around the Tigris and Euphrates rivers – modern-day Iran and Iraq.

This region was important as it took on a role of what could be described as "scientific" in that it investigated every single aspect of life and how it functioned within the Earth's energy fields.

We know about this region as it developed telescopes, microscopes, healing by herbs, aromatherapy, surgery and microsurgery and what we would call technological ways of investigating.

This is another reason why the Annunaki targeted this region of Sumeria about 5,000 years ago.

As had happened on Atlantis, we began to lose many of our higher aspects of full consciousness. We began to lose many of the higher brain functions such as the ability to translocate and bi-locate and even our abilities to communicate psychically became difficult.

In order to remedy these losses, 18,000 years ago we built the Egyptian and South American pyramids and the pyramids in many other regions of the world.

These pyramids were never intended to be used as tombs and, in fact, never were. Archaeologists have never found bodies in any of the pyramids apart from one or two burials that took place a long time after the pyramids were built and even these burials were not in any of the main chambers but in chambers dug especially for the later burial.

The pyramids were designed and built to be psychic enhancers. In other words, as we began to lose our psychic capabilities, we entered the main chambers of the pyramids and, using sound sequences, we triggered very powerful energy patterns within the pyramid itself. These standing wave energies were powerful enough to re-merge the soul back into the body and our full psychic potential was restored.

In order to help us understand and remember how to use the pyramids, some people took on the role of “teachers” to help guide those who had lost these higher faculties to restore them.

These teachers learned all of the sound sequences necessary to trigger the pyramids’ energies and they became what could be considered the first form of “priesthood”.

The sound sequences are also the true “Keys of Enoch”.

But, even with these teachers, we still lost our higher brain functions.

Most people did not mind too much as they still had abilities far beyond anything we have now, but, a few did decide to maintain all of their potential and these later developed into the Pharaoh.

This situation also gave rise to the beginnings of members of a society having a greater knowledge than the remainder – the beginnings of secret societies.

The Human Plan

Eventually, we worked out what the problem was – the Earth, in order to bring about physical life, generated an energy signal of 7.56 cycles per second.

In other words, to be physical, we needed to slow the energy frequencies of the soul to match the Earth’s own lowest frequency and this 7.56 cycles per second was too low a frequency to maintain all of the soul within the body for any length of time. The problem was that no one could work out what the correct frequency should be.

What we, collectively, decided to do was to formulate a plan, a way in which we could learn how to be fully human again but, this time, being human in a way which allowed us to keep all of our soul’s potential intact together with all of our higher psychic abilities.

The Plan was this: we would divide the soul into two parts; the physical aspect and the higher aspect – the physical aspect being about one quarter of the total soul with the higher aspect being the remaining three quarters. The physical aspect would live out a series of lifetimes learning everything that it was possible to learn about living a physical life on Earth – a process we know as reincarnation.

As we lived each lifetime, the knowledge we gained would be recorded, first by the higher aspect of the soul and then by the Akashic.

This knowledge gathering process we know by the Sanskrit name of Karma. This is all that Karma originally meant – knowledge. The meaning has been misinterpreted and new interpretations have been attached to this word over the centuries but all it actually means is knowledge.

Whilst the lower aspect was living out its chosen lifetime, our higher aspect would ensure that we kept on the straight and narrow path we had mapped out between lives, by communicating through the seven primary chakras – the chakras are actually aspects of the total soul within the physical body.

This communication took the form of an illness. If we strayed from our chosen path, the energies of one, or more, chakras would become depleted, we would feel symptoms of illness and then we could regain our health by listening to the message our higher aspect was giving us and return to our path in life.

This is all that an illness is; a message from our higher self to tell us that we were not living our lives quite as we should and we need to correct our behaviour<sup>15</sup>.

Collectively, we all agreed to be a part of this plan and it was put into action 7,000 years ago.

We gave ourselves a time limit of 7,000 years and this time limit ran out at the end of 2011. This plan is known as The Human Plan and every single person who has lived on Earth since has been working within that plan.

This is the purpose of human life – to find out how we re-merge the whole soul back into the body and we gave ourselves 7,000 years in order to achieve our aim.

So why 7,000 years? And why the end of 2011 running in to the end of 2012?

If you remember back to what we said earlier about all life within the solar system being destroyed 3.8 million years ago; the solar system has been effectively dead ever since. That is, apart from one planetary moon, there is no other life within our solar system whereas prior to 3.8 million years ago, every planet supported life.

Life in our solar system is an experiment to find out whether life at the kind of energy frequencies we call physical, can exist – we are here to fulfil the Creator’s wish.

With life on Earth being so successful, the rest of the solar system has decided to come back to life.

Since the end of the 1960’s our Sun has been generating more and more energies within the heliosphere to allow the other planets to wake up.

To help in this new choice for life, we are also taking advantage of the energy patterns that are available from the centre of our galaxy – this is one of the main reasons for the end of 2012 being so important, this energy from the galactic centre was at its peak.

We decided to complete our own waking up process, the reintegration of the soul back into the body, at the end of 2011 to allow us to assist in the solar system-wide wake up.

So what does this mean for us individually?

First of all, we are not “Ascending” anywhere, the term Ascension was termed by the Velon to try to make us believe that in order to further evolve we must “Ascend” off the planet and go somewhere else.

Remember that the Earth defines a Human Being as a physical body that contains the whole of the soul and this is the purpose of The Human Plan – to find a way in which we could achieve this again. So why would we need to go away from Earth to achieve this?

Exactly, to go somewhere away from the Earth when we were so close to completing all of our plans makes no sense whatsoever.

To a lot of people, this may sound impossible but, there are currently almost three million people on Earth who have already achieved full soul reintegration back into the body – as of early 2013.

The vast majority of these full Human Beings live in isolated communities in isolated regions of the planet so it is unlikely you will encounter them until you complete your own part of this reintegration process.

Let’s face it, if these reintegrated souls were in the western world they would either be rounded up by the military and experimented on or they would be turned into a new religion; or both.

In fact, the first people to undergo the final stages of their soul reintegration was on June 2nd 2003. There were two small groups, a total of 68 people, one in Europe and one in America.

Some Propaganda

Before we go on to look at how you can achieve this process of reintegration for yourself, we need to take a look at the implications of the Annunaki Plan and how it is being used to stop us from achieving our individual re-integrations.

The main tool used against us, you and me that is, is fear. By creating fear within the population you create control and by promoting the Annunaki version of human history, you create confusion.

The structure is this: The Annunaki took over the Illuminati and have been in control ever since. The first act of the Illuminati was to design and bring about the French Revolution in order to bring about a socialist state. When this failed, the Illuminati moved to America and have controlled the political, monetary and military systems ever since.

Their next act was to finance and control the Russian Revolution; this was financed and engineered by American and British banks. More recently, they are in the process of trying to build a centrally controlled socialist Europe through the Lisbon treaty. This treaty wipes out the sovereignty of every EU country and will effectively remove free elections as all regional leaders, or Commissars, will be appointed by Brussels – this is happening under our very noses.

In order to help the Illuminati carry this out, they have created NGO’s – Non-Governmental Organisations – such as The World Bank, World Health Organisation, World Trade Organisation, United Nations, Trilateral Commission, and many, many others to take total control of our health, finances and what we can or cannot eat.

To coordinate these governments and NGO’s, the Illuminati created the Bildebergers.

This is an organisation set up to pass Illuminati instructions on to government leaders, the heads of media corporations and the heads of trans-national businesses.

To work on a more personal level, the re-established Freemasons were set up to pass on information and instructions to people like police chiefs and bank managers.

This does not mean that all Freemasons are complicit within this arrangement. Those Freemasons below the thirtieth level follow the Scottish Rites of Freemasonry and generally do not know about other levels. Those Freemasons, who are promoted to the thirtieth rank, and especially above, in America known as Shriners, follow the New Palladian Rites which begin to allow them access to the secrets of the Annunaki story and recognise Lucifer as the “God” of Freemasons and the Illuminati.

Lucifer is a title taken on by the Velus.

All of the organisations within this hierarchy work together to control every aspect of our lives and control our thoughts.

For example: we have touched on official scientific versions of events with the false human history. In addition to this, there are other fundamental untruths such as the Big Bang – this did not occur and many cosmologists are now beginning to counter Big Bang Theory. Gravity does not exist, the Universe is held together by consciousness.

We, and other life, are connected to Earth not by gravity but by compatible frequencies of soul energy – our individual souls connect in directly with the Earth’s consciousness.

These Universe-wide consciousness energies have been measured by scientists as electro-magnetic frequencies.

As we undergo a change in our own levels of consciousness, so is the Earth. For example, the move of the magnetic pole towards the equator is not happening. What is happening is that the rotational axis is moving north – the Earth is returning to a vertical rotation – the magnetic pole is not moving; it is its relationship to the rotational axis that is changing.

***

Have you wondered why the west declared war on Iraq? It had nothing to do with getting rid of Saddam Hussein nor weapons of mass destruction nor anything to do with Iraqi oil, the world is awash in oil so it does not need the Iraq oil wells and in any way, so much uranium was dumped onto Iraq with DU weapons that the oil is radioactive.

The real reason for declaring war on Iraq is because it is the region where modern life began – ancient Sumeria. The real reason for attacking Iraq is to remove, to the west, any evidence supporting the Annunaki fantasy story and also to destroy any evidence that contradicts the Annunaki fantasy story. This is also the main reason for war-mongering against Iran; it was also part of ancient Sumeria.

***

Then there is man-made climate change. This is a total hoax designed specifically to create an extra carbon tax as a means of financing The New World Order.

Global temperatures have been rising since 1850, this was the date of the last Thames winter fayre which could only take place because the Thames froze over, but the temperature rise is due to natural fluctuations in preparation for our completion of the Human Plan, as has the increase in carbon dioxide we talked about earlier.

Global temperatures actually stopped rising in 1995, according to the Metrological Office official figures.

All of the claims about our living in the hottest global temperatures in the history of the planet is a deliberate lie<sup>16</sup>.

At the time of Atlantis, the average global temperatures were at six degrees centigrade with carbon dioxide levels much higher than they currently are.

Seventy thousand years ago, just before the end of Atlantis, there were rhinoceros wandering around the south of England living off savannah-type grasslands enjoying the global six degree temperatures<sup>17</sup>.

Two thousand years ago, the Roman occupation of Britain claimed, in their written records, that they grew vines that produced “very drinkable red wine” along Hadrian’s Wall. To grow grape vines along Hadrian’s Wall means that temperatures must have been about four degrees centigrade.

Then there was the “Medieval Warm Period” between the end of the 900’s AD to about 1400 where average temperatures were about two point five degrees centigrade.

After 1400, global temperatures began to drop and were below zero for the next 450 years as there was the “Mini Ice Age”.

Temperatures rose above freezing in 1850 as a natural progression out of the mini ice age and this is why the date of 1850 is used in the propaganda about man-made global warming.

Current global temperatures are at about one point five degrees centigrade but are set to rise higher, perhaps as high as in the Medieval Warm Period as the energies of the “6th Sun” begin to have their effect in the near future.

Along with climate change, we have the myth of a rising population. Official government figures state that the world population is about 7 billion and rising. This is a lie.

The main reason for this lie is so that GM crops need to be grown to feed the world. Apart from the fact that GM crops are increasingly failing and eating them is causing new diseases (Morgellan’s disease) in both humans and animals, the real reason is again fear. So let us look at the real figures. Virtually every country has reported a population drop over at least the last ten years.

Western countries are shutting schools due to lack of pupils, in other words, the birth rate is extremely low.

Every western country is having to bring in migrant workers just to sustain the current workforce levels.

Many eastern European countries are now virtually empty of people as the population has left to work in other countries.

Most non-western countries have dropping populations due to famine, wars and mass vaccination programmes.

So how can we have a rising world population?

According to the Akashic, the world population peaked at 7.4 billion in 1996. Since then it has been rapidly falling to the point where it is currently between 3.8 and 3.9 billion and it is continuing to drop.

The reason why people are starving in many countries is not too many mouths to feed but too much land has been given over to the growing of crops for bio-fuels, so much so that many countries cannot grow enough food to feed their people – world food prices have risen by an average of 35 percent since the planting of bio fuels began (figures from The Friends of the Earth).

Wi-Fi

Everybody seems to love their Wi-Fi. No trailing cables around the house, access to “hot spots” means that you can watch your favourite soap on your tablet computer whilst on the move.

Virtually every street in every town and city in the western world is now Wi-Fi saturated. But what is Wi-Fi?

The frequencies used to transmit Wi-Fi fall into the range known as microwaves – that’s right, the same as the oven in your kitchen.

The history of microwave use is this:

If you are an old codger like me, you will be able to remember the introduction of microwave ovens in the 1970’s.

Fast food was becoming fashionable and cafes and sandwich bars needed a means of heating food quickly. Microwaves, as a possible means of instant heating had only just been discovered but there were extreme doubts expressed, by scientists, of the safety of using microwaves.

When they were finally introduced, the first microwave ovens were huge stainless steel boxes with about two centimetres of lead lining. The lead lining was necessary to protect the user from the “harmful microwave radiation”. Those fast food outlets who bought microwave ovens were required by law to have staff specially trained in the use of the oven and had to wear lead-lined aprons (the same as those used in hospital X-ray departments) to protect them from becoming sterile from the microwave radiation. Think how unprotected you are when you use your microwave oven in your kitchen given current ovens have virtually no protective insulation.

Becoming sterile was not the only problem. A full-scale study carried out at the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology and the University Institute for Biochemistry by Drs Hans Hertel and Bernard H Blanc published in 1992, showed very clearly that eating foods cooked in a microwave oven created major changes in the body’s biochemistry, particularly to the blood, causing the creation of cancer forming substances.

Publication of their report was banned by the Swiss courts at the request of the Swiss FEA.

Fortunately, the doctors pursued their case all the way through to the Court of Human Rights and the publication ban was lifted in 1988.

However, no newspapers or TV stations reported on the doctors' study – another level of ban – despite the court ruling that:

“This decision is to put an end to judicial censorship of persons drawing attention to the health hazards of certain products<sup>18</sup>.”

If any other product used with food preparation or heating was shown to have similar devastating effects on the body, it would either have been banned or be required to have a prominent health warning attached to it. So why not microwave ovens?

Well, that is to do with what else microwaves are used for and who wants them to be used in that way.

The next stage of development of using microwaves was with mobile or cell phones.

A huge percentage of people in the western world now use mobile phones several times a day.

Whilst “official” studies carried out by the phone companies give the use of mobiles a clean bill of health, independent studies show a very different picture<sup>19</sup>.

Mobile phones work by phone masts permanently emitting microwave frequencies that the phone can pick up and use to make phone calls.

The emissions from the masts have been shown to kill bees, kill other insects and birds and give trees the equivalent of cancer<sup>20</sup>.

In humans, in putting the ear piece to your ear concentrates the microwave frequencies into the ear causing localised heating of the inner ear and the nerve cells that connect the ear to the brain. These types of nerve cells are called “glial cells” and are present in huge numbers within the brain.

The result of this localised heating is that the glial cells become cancerous. Hands-free sets for mobile phones make the situation very much worse as they concentrate the microwave frequencies in the ear to an even greater extent.

The group most affected by this kind of inner ear heating is children as their bodies are still building.

The incidence of cancer of these types of glial cells has risen astronomically in the past ten years.

Then we come to Wi-Fi and a whole new set of microwave-generated health problems.

In a study by Dr Andrew Goldsworthy published in 2012<sup>21</sup>, he points out the effects that long-term exposure to microwave frequencies can have on the body, particularly mobile phones and Wi-Fi.

Dr Goldsworthy's study points out that these types of frequencies cause damage to the body's cells that are not caused by heating (as in the cell phone damage).

He points out that we are currently exposed to about one million billion billion (one followed by eighteen zeros) times more man-made microwaves than our natural exposure.

The main effects of this level of exposure are that the body's cells begin to break down. That isn't just glial cells but all cells of the body leading to many different physiological symptoms including cancer.

Fortunately, not everyone is susceptible to this type of damage but a very high percentage of the population is.

There is a reason for this that comes from my own research into the body cells' structure and how the cell's structural integrity is maintained. This is to do with the body's cholesterol levels<sup>22</sup>.

Contrary to common propaganda, there is only one type of cholesterol and that is manufactured by the liver. The liver produces cholesterol twenty four hours per day, three hundred and sixty five days a year without using any saturated fats whatsoever in the production process.

Cholesterol has very many uses within the body to keep many of the body's processes working properly. One of these useful jobs is the maintaining of the structural integrity of all of the body's cells.

Our microwave-saturated (Wi-Fi, mobile phones, cordless phones and microwave ovens) environment has a very damaging effect on the cells of the body.

If your cholesterol levels are as the body wants them to be, the body's cells can fight off the potential damage from microwaves. But if you are on cholesterol lowering drugs, the time it takes to damage the body's cells reduces considerably.

This probably accounts for Dr Goldsworthy's findings that some people are seemingly unaffected by these frequencies.

However, it seems as though it is only a matter of time, particularly as the use of Wi-Fi appliances is set to increase astronomically with the enforced introduction of “smart meters”<sup>23</sup>.

Smart meters are electricity meters that have a Wi-Fi antenna that transmits your electricity usage to your supplier twenty four hours per day.

They are being introduced for one reason only – the removal, in the near future, of the currency-based economy (banknotes) to a financial system based on carbon usage.

The plan is that you are “given” a certain number of carbon credits, dependant upon your financial status, which allow you to purchase goods or services. The more electricity you use, the lower your credit rating and the lower your carbon credit.

It is the introduction of this carbon-based credit economy that is the reason for the myth of global warming we discussed earlier.

The idea is that those behind the NWO make us believe that global warming is man-made and then charge us a carbon tax which helps to pay for the NWO plans – this is what smart meters are the beginnings of.

If these microwave frequencies are so damaging, why are they being used at all?

Remember the aims of Agenda 21 that we talked about earlier? The aim of reducing the world’s population down to five hundred million?

What better way to kill people than to make them believe that they are having fun using all of these microwave-driven gadgets whilst underneath it all they are slowly dying without being aware of it.

HAARP

When there is the use of technology such as HAARP which stands for High-energy Active Auroral Research Programme. The first HAARP station was built in Alaska but there are now a number of others dotted around the planet. The Military claim that it is not a military project but was set up for use by the military for “over the horizon” radar and communications.

It might very well be used for these purposes but its two main uses are weather modification, mainly to cause droughts and famines but more recently, it has been used to flood the Earth with Extra Low Frequency waves.

These ELF waves are intended to slow down the Earth’s rising frequencies as well as to slow down our own consciousness re-integration as they are similar in frequency to microwaves.

These are very deliberate acts and have caused some disruption to our process of change.

***

We are also likely to see, in the very near future, a general disclosure of the UFO contact information held by the United States. This massive cover up has been going on since 1947 and the Roswell crash.

However, this will be a limited disclosure of evidence as it will be geared towards making us believe that the Annunaki are our makers and the “gods” of the Old Testament.

This disclosure is also designed to destroy current religious beliefs and substituting the Big Bang/Double Dark cosmological-based religion proposed by the likes of Primack and Adams mentioned earlier. A new religion tailor made for the New World Order.

***

The list goes on.

We have been fed fabrications and lies to make us more compliant and fearful. Fortunately, as we progress through our change of consciousness, these kinds of lies can be spotted much more easily and hence the rise in the number of people speaking out against these atrocities.

Channelled Information

The Velon have also been working very closely with those who “channel” information. These are psychics who are able to communicate with those souls who are no longer physical or those who are of non-physical origins; in other words, Extra Terrestrials.

Ever since Madam Blavatsky, who established the Theosophical Society in the mid 1800’s, the Velon/Annunaki have been communicating through channels to provide us with massive amounts of disinformation designed to make us believe that they are here to help us in our process of soul re-integration. Except, the way in which these channelled messages work is to try and make us believe that we are “Ascending”.

In other words, in order to fulfil our potential, we must “Ascend” off the planet to a “5th Dimension”.

In order to help us in this, the Velon/Annunaki falsely claim to have thousands of “cloaked” ships, within our solar system, ready to lift us off into space when we are ready – this mass evacuation is being coordinated by a group calling themselves “Ashtar Command” who are acting under the guidance of “The Galactic Federation”. These ships do not exist – the Velon have been kicked out of the solar system and cannot return.

All of these messages and organisations are Velon/ Annunaki in origin. There are literally thousands of these kinds of messages from hundreds of organisations, individuals and “angels”, all telling us that we must leave the Earth.

One of the most persistent of these individuals calls himself Sananda. This name, Sananda, is claimed by the Velon to mean “the ascended Christ” – the return of the “Christ Consciousness”. Many, many people have fallen for this ploy as they see it as the “Second Coming” of Jesus, as predicted in the New Testament.

This ploy has led many people, particularly those of the Christian faith, to delay their own reintegration until “the Christ Consciousness” has returned.

This is exactly what the Velon/Annunaki want. They want people to delay their completion, they want people to be confused and want someone to step in and “Save” them, it is in this way that the Velon expand their control and remove people’s freedom to choose their own path.

It is also interesting that this character has begun to call himself “Lord Sananda” who, along with his fellow “Lord”, “Lord Metatron”, claim to be here to save us all.

One question:- if these are beings who have “Ascended” to perfection, as they claim, why would they have an ego that requires the title “Lord”?

However, despite all of these efforts to mislead and to stop us, we are changing, we are moving forwards but we are now short of time, we just need to understand that we are being manipulated.

Once we understand that, we can let these fears go and get on with the things we need to do.

Firstly, do not, repeat do not become involved with mass meditations that ask for help in helping the Planet or meditations that claim to be changing planetary energies in any form, whether that is activating crystals or taking over energy points like Silbury Hill. These meditations were designed to give the Velon/Annunaki control over these energies.

Fortunately, those who act as guardians of the planet interceded and stopped the Annunaki’s plans. If you feel as though you have been requested to build a “portal”, resist the urge to go out and do so.

The Velon/Annunaki have been denied access to our solar system and the request for portals to be built was an attempt by the Velon/Annunaki to by-pass the solar system’s and the Earth’s defences.

There have also been attempts to use HAARP technology to build “black holes” out of our solar system. The spiral that appeared over Norway in December 2009 was one such attempt as were the spirals that appeared over China and Japan in early 2010 – all HAARP generated.

All of these attempts failed to build a black hole, there is insufficient energy within our solar system for that to happen, but people believe that black holes were built and are interpreting these sky events as the arrival of the ships that are to take us off planet.

What Can Be Done?

The best, and only way, to help the planet and to help ourselves is to ignore all of these things.

Yes, politicians and governments are trying to curtail our freedoms and are building many prison-like buildings where those who protest against the system will be held indefinitely without charge – this new legislation is already in place in all western countries, so mass demonstrations on the streets are just going to get you locked up.

The best way of defeating the plans of the Velon/Annunaki, and those governments and organisations that have already been enslaved by them, is to look to yourself and sort out any outstanding problems there are in your own life.

What do I mean by this? Each individual is a soul who has built for itself a body. We are not a body with a soul but a soul who has chosen to live lifetimes on Earth and in doing so, the soul has built the bodies we inhabit. But, most of the soul has not been able to enter into the body because the energies of the planet were too low to sustain the total soul in the body. The Earth has done her bit – She changed her base-note energy frequencies from the original 7.56 cycles per second to 3,500 cycles per second; this She did on the 30th of May 2000. This is why everything feels as though it has accelerated since 2000; the Earth's energy frequencies have undergone a huge shift.

What we humans need to do is to match the Earth's efforts and raise our own frequencies. So how do we achieve this?

There are two main ways in which we can achieve our goal of re-integrating the soul back into the body.

Firstly, we need to start to think on a different level.

Instead of taking science and politics at face value, we need to start thinking about why we are told the things we are told.

In this essay, I have tried to give you a basic understanding of who and what we are and what our purpose is on Earth. What we all need to do is to start thinking on those kinds of levels and understanding.

We have been deliberately misled so we need to turn that way of thinking around and begin to think for ourselves.

By starting to think of ourselves in the light of what the Akashic has recorded, we should see ourselves in a different light.

We are bigger than we think we are. We are capable of so much more than we think we are. We can change – if that is what we choose to do.

The choice is ours – nobody can do it for us.

Secondly, we need to start making room in our in our bodies for the rest of the soul to download into. This is arguably the biggest problem we, in the western world, have and by far the main reason why nobody in the western world re-integrated at the end of 2012.

Most of us are filled with unexpressed and unresolved emotions and all of this emotional debris takes up a huge amount of room, so we need to get this rubbish out.

Most of the stored emotions stem from our not expressing ourselves fully; disputes with our boss, the neighbour, granny, our parents, brothers and sisters, children, whoever. Everyone we share our lives with have an emotional impact on us and unless we deal with these kinds of situations honestly, we end up storing all of the emotions we did not express.

So say you really felt like screaming and shouting at your boss, or whoever, and all you did was to mutter under your breath, all the screaming and shouting you didn't do becomes stored within the body.

The best way of emptying this debris out is to discuss it with the person who caused you problems.

If that is not possible, you can write to them. This is writing in a particular way which sounds like it shouldn't work until you try it, you will be surprised at just how much emotional junk you are carrying around.

The Giveaway

What you do is to start with an old sheet of newspaper. Using a pencil, write to a person or situation that comes to mind, just write all over the newsprint.

Once you have finished a piece, just rip it up and get rid of it.

Do not read it back; that is very important, do not read it back.

It is the reason for using a pencil on newspaper as you are bound to be tempted to read it but you can't read pencil on newspaper. If you read it back, you are just taking it back into your body and you will have to start again.

You will know you have cleared a situation when you can think back on it and not feel any emotion attached to the situation.

If you still feel emotions connected to that person or situation, you will need to do more writing.

For most people, the giveaway is not a one off process. Everybody carries emotional hurts going back many years. By writing those hurts down onto the newspaper, you are "giving away" the emotion from your body and onto the paper.

This is arguably the most important exercise you can do for yourself if you have chosen to undergo soul re-integration. If you are full of old emotional debris, there is literally not enough room in your body for your higher self to get in and so soul re-integration is impossible unless you clear this debris out.

This lack of emotional clearance is the primary reason why virtually all westerners failed to re-integrate at the end of 2012.

Bodily Changes

The main indicator of how we are changing is with the chakras. The chakras are aspects of the total soul within the physical body and are the means by which the higher aspects of the soul communicates to us.

As we begin to clear ourselves of our emotional debris, the chakras begin to change colour. We are used to the chakras being the rainbow colours; red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet. Since May 30th 2000, nobody on the planet has these colours any longer.

When the Earth changed her base-note frequency, the chakras almost automatically changed colour.

Colour is only a product of frequency; if the frequency changes, so must the colour. Put another way, if the frequencies of the body increase, it is impossible for the colours of the chakras to remain the same.

Most people now have colours which are spiralling golds, copper golds, blues, green, violet but mainly transparent.

By transparent I mean pure energy that looks like the kind of heat-haze shimmer you get on hot summer days.

As you begin to clear out the emotional debris, the chakras change again to total transparency. In other words all of the chakras lose their colours and they become the transparent heat haze shimmer of pure soul energy.

The next stage is where the chakras disappear altogether. What this means is that the spine becomes a smooth column of energy from the crown of the head to the base of the spine without specific chakras.

As someone who has worked as a healer and psychic surgeon for the past thirty five years, I can see the energies within the body and believe me, this is what the body's energies are doing.

Once you have reached the point where you no longer have any defined chakras, that is as far as you can go until your higher self decides to complete the reintegration process.

Once we have completed this reintegration we will have all of the knowledge and all of the abilities we need to remove the Velon/Annunaki and to clean up global pollution and all the other bad things we have done to this amazing planet and there will be no need to move to Pandora<sup>24</sup>.

Only you can choose to undergo this body and soul reintegration, nobody will, or can decide for you. This is your choice, your soul and your life – don't be left behind.

The Way Forwards

Yes, there is still a way forwards. Humanity can still fulfil its promise and potential but time is now becoming short and, if people want to undergo soul re-integration, they must act quickly.

If you think back to what we said earlier, the percentage of people in the western world failed to meet the self-assessment they made.

An Average of sixty percent of the population in western countries proclaimed themselves to be ready to make their soul transitions by the twenty first of December 2102.

On the day, the percentage of westerners who were actually ready and capable averaged around one percent.

What did happen on the 21st of December 2012 was that the long awaited new energy patterns arrived and are boosting the energies of the Earth, humans and the rest of the planets in the solar system.

Despite the best efforts of the Velon/Illuminati to prevent these energies reaching the Earth, by HAARP ELF frequencies and chemtrails spraying of aluminium in the upper atmosphere, these new energies are beginning to have an affect on those who were actually ready to receive them.

Given so few people in the western world were ready to take on these energies, the Earth has reduced their immediate impact to allow people a little extra time to bring themselves up to a state of readiness.

The Earth has achieved this by slowing down the impact of these energies so that instead of the anticipated mass shift that should have occurred on 21/12/12, She is allowing people to gradually absorb these new frequencies.

But the Earth cannot delay the impact of these new energies for very much longer: those behind the plans for the New World Order are accelerating their plans. If the NWO are allowed to achieve their goals, then the process of soul re-integration would be disrupted.

Whilst the new energy patterns are in the process of destroying the impetus of the Velon/Illuminati/NWO plans, these plans still have the potential to disrupt our soul re-integration – at least in the short to medium term.

What is needed is for all of the people in the western world who claimed to be ready to undergo soul re-integration to now bring themselves up to where they claimed to be but clearly were not.

A great many people said they were ready in the hope that the new energies would sweep away all of their unresolved emotional problems for them so that they would not have to put in any actual work to sort themselves out.

The elephant in the living room will not go away of its own accord; it has to be looked squarely in the eye and dealt with once and for all.

The best way to start this process is with the giveaway, described above, so that you begin to remove the accumulation of emotional debris you have not cleared and is occupying the body's energy that should be occupied by your higher self.

For your soul (higher self) to re-integrate back into the body you must make space for it and the only way that space can be made is to use the giveaway to clear out the past unexpressed emotions.

There are two advantages to using the giveaway:

1. It clears out all of this unwanted emotional rubbish to make room for your higher self.
2. By using the giveaway, you can identify the people you have the biggest problems with – the source of your living room elephant. Once you have identified the underlying problem, or person, you then must confront them and clear the problem.

If you have made the choice to undergo soul re-integration, then you must clear yourself out of your past – nobody can do it for you. You are the one who is storing these emotions so it can only be you who is capable of removing them.

Once you get yourself clear, you begin to see yourself in a new light and your dealings with other people become less of a problem. You begin to expand in your energies, feel more connected to the Earth and all living things. Believe me when I say it is well worth the small effort it takes to clear yourself out.

Otherwise, what is the alternative?

You become more and more enclosed – more disconnected from the world, more remote from other people and the Earth and at some time in the not too distant future, you will have to leave the planet as your energy frequencies will no longer be compatible with the energies of the Earth and of physical life.

The choice is yours to make freely. Nobody is judging your actions, or inactions, only you and your higher self can judge yourself. But don't wait too long to decide.

We are more than human.

We are more than we ever dreamed possible.

It is time to live.

It is time to regain control.

14. In recent years, the American military have stopped calling “aliens” aliens but now call them NTBE – non-terrestrial biological entities or NTE – non-terrestrial entities. Also “UFO’s” are no longer called that but NTV’s – non-terrestrial vehicles. Names become changed in this way because of familiarity with the subject. In other words, the military is so used to dealing with UFO’s they are no longer unidentified and Aliens become known entities.

19. I have read six independent studies over the past few years into the damage caused by mobile phone use. All them warn that the “bubble is about to burst” in terms of the number of people who have micro-wave-based health problems that have not yet come to light. Or, at least, not officially yet come to light.

20. Sorry, but I could not find my original notes for this study but it was carried out in Amsterdam a couple of years ago. The study examined a small group of trees and a grassed area in the middle of Amsterdam immediately following the installation of new phone/Wi-Fi mast. All of the insects in a 200 metre radius were either killed or disappeared from the area. The same applies to the bird population of the neighbourhood. The trees were examined for damage and found to have a problem the researchers describes as “tree cancer” and were rapidly dying.

24. Pandora is the planet on which the movie “Avatar” is set. Since the film’s release a great many teenagers have stated in their suicide notes that they are killing themselves in the hope that they would be re-born on Pandora.

The above book list is quite short but they all contain information, and proof, that what we understand to be scientific evidence is utter rubbish.

There are many other books out there that do the same – the web is mainly Velon/NWO propaganda.

We must start to think in newer and higher ways, these books offer a step to break the patterns of thought most currently have.

Break the propaganda into pieces, start to think for yourself and maybe, just maybe, humans will survive on the planet.
